County Decision On Mill Valley's Annex Up In Air

By JEFF GREER

Seventy-five citizens who turned out before dawn today to learn what would happen to Mill Valley's long campaign to annex 137 acres of Alto and Richardson Bay tidelands still didn't know three hours later.

And they with the rest of us won't until Jan. 14.

"That only prolongs the agony," remarked one woman in the audience, after Marin County's Local Agency Formation Commission members closed their unique 7 a.m. session by deciding not to vote on the annexation until their next regular meeting.

The commissioners, holding a hearing "de novo" because member Byron W. Leydecker was absent at the Dec. 14 hearing and the remaining four deadlocked in a 2-2 vote, listened to two and three quarters hours of pro and con argument this morning.

10 A. M. DEADLINE

Then they debated for 15 minutes whether they should try to vote before a 10 a.m. deadline imposed by commission member Wayne J. Womack.

The Novato representative earlier had said he was willing to attend the rehearing only if it was over by 10 a.m.

"I want time to digest the new information in my notes," declared Sausalito Mayor Jan Paul Dyk, a commission member. Leydecker also said he wanted to discuss the annexation issue at the next commission meeting.

SAME EVIDENCE

Commissioner H. G. Marchant of Kentfield, arguing that most of the evidence was exactly the same as had been presented before, wanted an immediate decision. Womack said he would go along with the delay; Broemmel did not commit himself, but as chairman said "the majority" wanted to discuss the issue further.

Leydecker took issue with Mill Valley spokesmen's contention that the role of the Local Agencies Formation Commission is to decide whether the annexation is in the best interests of the city, and does not impose "overriding adversity" to the interests of property owners involved.

"The consideration that seems important to me," Leydecker declared, "is what is in the best interests of 36,000 people" in the entire area of Mill Valley and unincorporated environs.

"I can't get too exercised about the City of Mill Valley . . . or whether a particular property

Exploding Cans Save Four In Fire

Bangs of exploding paint spray cans were credited with saving the lives of the Aaron Williams family early today when the Williams' garage was gutted by flames at 1301 Idylberry Road in Lucas Valley subdivision $12,000 loss.

The sound awakened housewife Betty Williams just as flames were eating through a solid core door between the garage and the rest of the home, according to Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom. The cans exploded due to the intense heat.

Smelling smoke, Mrs. Williams tried to call the fire department. But found the phone dead because its wires had been burned through by the flames.

Mrs. Williams roused her husband and two daughters, Ginny, 7, and Jill, 5, and the family rushed from the house.

Across the street, neighbor Robert Carson had also been awakened by the sound of the exploding paint cans.

"It sounded like my garage door was banging," he said later. "Then I saw the flames burning quite vigorously through the window of the Williams' garage."

Carson's call was the first of many received by the fire department from neighbors who

Holiday Traffic Toll Climbing

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Christmas holiday traffic toll climbed steadily today. More than 300 persons have been killed with the holiday little more than half over.

The National Safety Council said, "The first 24 hours were the worst for any three day Christmas holiday in history." Traffic deaths appear to be continuing at record rates.

Michigan led the list of states with 25 traffic deaths. Texas had 23, New York 21 and California 20 since the start of the holiday period.

Killer Tornado Hits In Central Georgia

MACON, Ga. (UPI)—A tornado roared out of the darkness along a 40 mile path through central Georgia today, killing two persons and injuring at least a dozen others.

The twister knifed into the nearby community of Gray, destroying a trailer home and a farm house. Two men were killed there and five persons injured.

It danced from Macon to Milledgeville on a 40 mile trail of destruction. The twister swirled down Milledgeville's main street smashing stores and homes.

"Everything that could be unroofed or turned over, was," a witness in Milledgeville said.

"It sounded like a freight train."

Five persons were injured at Milledgeville, none seriously.

The storm carried winds up to 100 miles an hour. In Milledgeville it ripped ancient oaks from the ground. The trees were those the United Daughters of the Confederacy have been fighting to preserve.

A Gray police department spokesman said the tornado hit about 1 a.m.

"It twisted one of those trailer homes all up," he said. "It also hit a house."

The dead at Gray were identified as Bill Edwards, 48, a resident of the trailer, and James H. Pittman, 45, who lived on the farm.

Five members of their families were injured.

The tornado cut its path of destruction a few feet above ground at Milledgeville.

"It sheared off trees and power poles," a witness said. "Windows caved in and car ports were blown away."

A number of department stores were heavily damaged in Milledgeville.

Milledgeville police made a door to door search for injured persons.

The twister made its first strike at the Glynco section of Macon. Damage there was light. A few trees were uprooted.

The tornado moved out of Milledgeville into the community of Hopewell, five miles away. Homes were damaged and trees and debris blocked streets and highways.

HIGHWAYS RUNDOWN IN STATE

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Federal Weather Bureau and State Division of Highways officials gave this rundown today on the status of major roads in Northern California:

U. S. 40-INTERSTATE 80 — Open, chains required in spots, snow falling.

STATE 70, FORMERLY U. S. 40A — Closed between Marysville and Oroville, and at Jarboe Gap in Butte County.

U. S. 50 — Closed by slides at Fresh Pond on the west side of Echo Summit, and at Myers on the east side.

U. S. 99W-INTERSTATE 5 — Now open all the way to Oregon border.

U. S. 101 — Closed by flooding from Willits to Crescent City.

STATE 299 — Closed between Redding and Arcata.

Many Spread Happiness, Joy For Christmas Season

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A rabbi doing the job for the police chief. A couple married 70 years. Louis Satchmo Armstrong's Christmas tree in Tokyo. A baby named Noel. Two colonels with big hearts in South Vietnam — all of them played a part in spreading the joy and happiness of Christmas.

The rabbi, Philip H. Weinberg, filled in as police chief of Reno, permitting the regular chief, Elmer Briscoe, to spend Christmas with his family.

Rabbi Weinberg enjoyed the work, saying it seemed fitting to do it "because of the new ecumenical spirit."

The Thompsons are 5 a.m. risers, usually retiring by 7 p.m., but not tonight.

"Our daughter is coming by to help us eat our wedding cake," said Mrs. Thompson.

"Maybe our grandchild and great-grandchild will be there, too."

Dikes Hold Fast; Portland Is Safe

Swollen Rivers Subside

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A windstorm brushed flood-threatened Portland, Ore., today but sturdy dikes holding back the Willamette and Columbia rivers held fast.

The winds, with gusts up to 45 miles an hour, moved on inland.

RAIN LESSENS

Rain lessened or stopped in water-logged Northern California.

Clouds lifted to 3,000 feet and Civil Defense officials in hard-hit Humboldt County sent helicopters on rescue missions. Cleanup operations increased as the weather outlook brightened.

The death toll stood at more than 40 in the Far West five-state flood plague. More than 14,000 persons were homeless and property damage was estimated in the millions of dollars.

RIVER RECEDES

After cresting yesterday at 29.8 feet, almost 12 feet above flood stage, the murky Willamette began to recede. Officials said only a three-foot concrete parapet held back the water.

Among the debris the river carried was a broken raft of logs, which passed under Portland's 10 bridges without doing any damage.

Forecasters predicted the Willamette's fall would be slow.

Oregon's Gov. Mark Hatfield said, "We're over the hump in the state as whole, but the situation remains critical in Portland."

1,200 FAMILIES

More than 1,200 families were evacuated in the North Portland area as the Columbia River threatened to inundate the section. Army Engineers insisted the evacuation was precautionary, but they declined to guarantee dikes along the river. More than 7,000 persons were homeless in Oregon.

Flood waters were receding in some California areas. Colder temperatures were forecast, promising more discomfort for about 7,000 flood refugees.

The dropping mercury was a mixed blessing. Mountain areas, especially the Sierra on the Nevada-California border refroze, reducing flood threats from melting snow.

Washington State weather forecasters called for snow tonight in the northwest and eastern portions of their state and rain elsewhere.

Predictions are that the Spokane River will crest and may cause some damage.

In Idaho, the Portneuf River dropped to a flood level of six and one-half feet as the weatherman predicted lessening rainfall for a 24-hour period.

The Weather Bureau in Boise reported the gradual reduction of south Idaho streams and that the Snake River on the Idaho-Oregon border had crested slightly below flood stage.

Flood conditions in Reno had declined by mid-afternoon yes-

STRANGE 'GIFT' FOR POLICE

Christmas Day started out with "business as usual" for San Rafael policemen, but things got interesting when Peggy and Margie Merz of 4 Trost Road, San Rafael, brought in this lost monkey. They explained they had found it at First Street and Miraflores Avenue. Dispatcher Harold W. Thomson tried to do his job and keep an eye on the animal, too. By today, the creature was being cared for at the Marin County Humane Society. But no one had come in with reports of a missing monkey. (San Rafael Police Photo)

Rain Back In Marin —And More Forecast

Heavy rains returned to Marin County today after brief letups, Christmas Day and Thursday.

Although forecasts had been for occasional rain today and tonight, Marin received a steady downpour which started early and continued through the morning.

More rain was in store for beseiged Northern California as a storm edged southward through Oregon early today. Current downpours were expected to turn to showers tomorrow with possible thunderstorms, the Weather Bureau said.

San Quentin conservation and road camp inmates were still on the job in the flood disaster areas of Northern California today, said Associate Warden Robert C. Loriano. Close to 500 of them were reported working to help flood victims at last count, he said.

Fifty-three inmates were still awaiting evacuation by helicopter from Clear Creek state highway maintenance camp in Siskiyou County, Loriano said. The inmates were to be flown to Montague and taken by bus to San Quentin.

About 100 refugees from Klamath River floods were being cared for by inmates and staff at a conservation camp at Alder in Del Norte County.

In Novato, citizens began a collection of clothing, toys and household goods for stricken Northern Californians. The collection point was at the home of Mrs. Hugh Drown, 3 Wallace Court.

The Salvation Army was scheduled to pick up the collected goods late Monday and distribute them to flod victims.

Rainfall was only relatively light during Christmas Day in Marin County with Tamalpais Valley reporting a high count of 1.31 inches for the 48 hours ending at 8 a.m. today.

Other 48-hour totals were Mill Valley, .78 of an inch, Chevy Chase (Larkspur), .75, Point Reyes Station, .65, Fairfax, .30, and Novato, .05.

Copter Is Found —No Survivors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A ground party today reached the wreckage of a Coast Guard helicopter which crashed Tuesday—believed to be carrying six persons — and reported there were no survivors.

The Coast Guard said it was impossible to tell immediately how many persons were aboard the helicopter when it crashed during a flood rescue mission.

The crash scene, in a wilderness section north of Arcata, is more than 300 miles north of San Francisco.

Laos Air Strikes

SAIGON (UPI) — Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, Laotian deputy premier, told South Vietnamese officials during a visit here that Laotian air strikes against Communist supply routes to South Vietnam have begun, reliable sources said today.

These sources quoted Phoumi as saying that Laotian planes are making frequent bombing flights over the Ho Chi Minh trail that cuts through southern Laos from North Vietnam.

Report Of Shooting

RIPLEY, Miss. (AP) — A civil rights group claimed today shots were fired into a house where two Ohio student workers are staying here. Authorities were checking reports the noise may have been firecrackers.

No injuries were reported.

Bad Day For Thief

The 16-year-old boy stole a car but it ran out of gas. He stole another car but it overturned as he rounded a corner at high speed.

Uninjured, he fled the scene and stole yet a third car which promptly burst into flames as he drove it.

Then a relative turned him in to the police.

Duke Has Stew

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Duke of Windsor could have had a Christmas turkey dinner yesterday but passed it up for stew, prunes and squash.

Doctors at Methodist Hospital, where he is recovering from last week's artery operation, told him yesterday he can eat solid food again. They told him there was turkey available if he wanted any, but the Duke politely declined the offer.

Wife Talks Of Slain Army Dentist

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Lt. Col. James R. Hagen, 43, gave up a successful dental practice for an Army career, his widow says, because he tired of shoveling snow from the sidewalk of their northern Wisconsin home.

Hagen

Hagen, an Army dental adviser, was one of two persons killed Christmas Eve when a bomb shattered a Saigon hotel. The bomb, believed the work of terrorists, wounded 107 persons.

His wife, Joy, left Vietnam two weeks ago and was at the home of an aunt here when she was notified early Christmas Day that her husband was dead. It was her 42nd birthday.

"He was very easy going," Mrs. Hagen said. "I don't think he had an enemy in the world.

"His job didn't involve politics. He was there to further dental health for the Vietnamese.

"He had a very successful practice in northern Wisconsin," the widow said, "but he tired of shoveling off the walk in the winter to go to work, then shoveling it off again to get in for lunch.

"We talked it over, and we decided to give the Army a try."

Slain Civilian Planning To Retire

WINTER PARK, Fla. (AP)—David M. Agnew, an American civilian killed in a Christmas Eve explosion in Saigon, planned to retire here when his government service ended, his wife, Anita, said today.

Mrs. Agnew said she understood her husband was a member of a special intelligence unit in Saigon but she did not know the exact nature of his work.

Agnew, who was 58, had served the Navy and other government agencies for 30 years, she said, including work with amphibious naval forces during World War II in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters.

3,000 Marooned After Tidal Wave

MADRAS (UPI)—Three thousand persons were reported still marooned today in the Dhanushkodi area of southeastern India where a tidal wave caused heavy loss of life and widespread destruction Wednesday.

At least 500 persons were drowned, including 114 on a railway train, according to latest wireless reports from the area.

The marooned families were reported crammed into an area of 10,000 square yards. Comparatively few had been rescued.

'Flying Grandfather's' New Record

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—"Flying grandfather" Max Conrad added another world record to his scrapbook today, touching down here after a 7,900 mile solo flight non stop from Cape Town, South Africa.

The silver haired aviator, 61, had planned to fly across the gulf to New Orleans after spending Christmas Day in the air. But bad weather and mechanical trouble forced him to land at the St. Petersburg Clearwater airport.

Conrad took off from Cape Town at midnight Wednesday and arrived here at 8:49 a.m., spending just under 59 hours in the air.

Quakes Plague Japanese Island

TOKYO (UPI)—Residents of Oshima Island, 45 miles south of Tokyo, have been unable to sleep nights since Dec. 9 because of intermittent earthquakes, it was reported today.

Minor quakes have been especially frequent in the past few days. At least 71 tremors were felt last night and early today.

Some residents dashed from their homes at 2 a.m. today when their houses shook hard enough to jar canned goods off of shelves. The island's main highway was reported damaged in four places.

No casualties have been reported, but the island's residents fear a big quake.

Visits JFK Grave

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen.-Elect Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.), brother of the late President John F. Kennedy, paid a Christmas Day visit to the Kennedy grave in Arlington National Cemetery.

Military authorities said Kennedy arrived at the hillside gravesite early in the morning and stayed for a few moments. The authorities said other visitors to the grave were few in number during the day.

Inmates Get Gifts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Seventy-five women inmates in the county jail received brightly wrapped Christmas presents yesterday.

Each package, decorated with a sprig of holly, contained brooches, pins and ear rings.

The costume jewelry is an annual present — for six years now — from a prosperous woman who until six years ago was a regular resident of the drunk tank.

Murder Plans

CAIRO (UPI) — African students who burned the U.S. Information Service library in Cairo on Thanksgiving Day planned to return the next day and kill American and Belgian diplomats, informed African sources said today.

The sources said Egyptian authorities got wind of the plan and sent word to the students that if they attempted to demonstrate again they would be deported.

Travel Ban Lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has lifted a nearly year-old order barring dependents from accompanying civilian and military personnel assigned to the sprawling Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba.

Adm. David L. McDonald, chief of naval operations, announced the end of the ban yesterday. He said that dependents would be able to begin traveling to the base again "effective immediately."

ANNEX

is split in half or not," Leydecker added.

He pressed the commission's executive officer, John F. Barrows, for an opinion on what would happen if areas surrounding Mill Valley become densely populated without annexing to the city.

"Mill Valley's statement that it can't get votes" to annex already populated areas is an indictment of the city's program, Leydecker suggested, but "no one has given us a constructive alternative." He said he did not consider the proposed Alto incorporation in terms of the hearing today.

Barrows replied that "I don't think you can say that anything seriously detrimental" would happen if the areas built up but remain unincorporated, "because in this county, the county has provided a large number of services" normally provided by cities, such as fire protection, police, sewers and the like through county operations or special districts.

"I recommended that this annexation go forward," Barrows reminded, "because I think it is more appropriate that these areas be inciuded in the city."

In general, the testimony pro and con paralleled that given at the Dec. 14 hearing, although more formally organized with time limits to the presentations.

Mill Valley Mayor Michael Warnum led the "pro" parade and termed himself "ring master" in introducing other councilmen and city officials. They stressed Mill Valley's plans to serve the area and long-time belief that the acreage involved should be included in the city's boundaries, as expressed in master plans dating back a decade.

Opposition speakers were introduced and timed by attorney Albert Bianchi. They included attorneys and planners for the Bothin and Al-Can of Marin properties, Alto property owners, and spokesmen for the Alto fire district. Principally, they challenged Mill Valley's ability to provide service equal to that already available for the area, questioned the city's claims that it would extend Sycamore Avenue and other traffic links, protested splitting the Bothin property, and argued against changes in planning jurisdiction.

heard the cans blowing up one by one.

Chief Bloom estimated damage to the garage, contents and a station wagon at $12,000. He said that fire had been going a long time when his men got to the scene and a sheet rock fire wall and the solid core door had kept the flames from the rest of the house for apparently about an hour.

Bloom found that the fire started in a plastic garbage can in the garage and spread to some nearby combustible material, including clothes and an old sewing machine.

"The heat had become very intense in the garage" said Bloom, "and the flames were about to burst through into the house."

"Then the cans started popping. It probably saved their lives."

The chief also added a word of caution about plastic garbage cans. A metal one wouldn't have burned through, he felt and probably it would have contained the fire. He said he believed the fire started in the garbage can due to spontaneous combustion.

Missing 'Lifer' Found In Prison

San Quentin "lifer" Gerald Morell, 31, missing since a 4:30 p.m. head count Wednesday, almost missed his Christmas dinner.

But prison authorities found him tired and hungry at 4:20 p.m. yesterday in a packing crate on the mezzanine floor of the furniture factory. He had a plastic container of water and two cookies.

Morell was given a meal, then placed in the adjustment center on a "segregated status"—apart from the other men, but not in isolation. He will come before the prison disciplinary committee Tuesday, and the district attorney will consider possible prosecution for attempted escape.

Associate Warden Robert C. Loriano said Morell was depressed, concerned over the amount of time he had to serve and in debt because of illegal gambling at the prison.

Morell, from San Bernardino, is serving life sentences for assault and kidnaping and other sentences for armed robbery. He was not due for initial consideration for parole until 1971.

Morell said searchers were sometimes close to him while he was in the crate. He had been working in the industial area, and passed through the furniture factory.

YULE

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Noel's first child was born Christmas Day in Long Beach. They named the baby girl, weighing 9 pounds, 10 ounces, Christy Carole.

Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong, the American Negro trumpeter who always seems to be smiling, got an extra Christmas lift from his wife, Lucile, in Tokyo. It happens every yule season.

Returning to his hotel suite after a week playing in outlying Japanese cities, Armstrong said to his wife: I see you got the Christmas going."

His eyes lit up at a Christmas tree in the front room. No matter where he is, his wife brings the tree, a custom she started 22 years ago.

Christmas brought happiness to Stefanija Rukas, who also celebrated her 58th birthday. The Lithuanian woman was reunited in New York with her husband and daughter after 23 years. She had been imprisoned by the Soviet secret police and spent 15 years in Siberian labor camps.

"She looks wonderful," said the daughter, Nijole, 26. "There were times when I thought I would never see her again."

"For the moment I am very happy," said Mrs. Rukas before she headed for Hartford, Conn., her new home.

Two Air Force colonels in South Vietnam who subbed for two junior officers are Allison Brooks, deputy commander of the Air Force's Second Division, and David T. Fleming, commanding officer of the 315th Troop Carrier Group, known as the "Air Commandos."

They volunteered for a captain and a lieutenant who normally would have been pilot and copilot on a combat mission running through Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

The two flew a C-123 assault cargo plane nicknamed "Linda" and ran into hot action when the Viet Cong attacked an outpost 75 miles southwest of Saigon in the Mekong delta. For 45 minutes the airmen launched flares as Vietnamese air force fighter planes roared over to bomb and strafe the attackers.

No One Injured Over Christmas

California Highway Patrolmen breathed a sigh of relief today as not one personal injury accident was reported on Marin highways over Christmas Day.

Officers suspected the lack of serious mishaps was due to the week's rains and flooding which persuaded many to stay at home.

The patrol scheduled a heavier crew of officers for the rest of the weekend, however, as well as for the New Year's Day weekend next week.

Weather Record

TORONTO (AP) — Whether it rose or tumbled, the mercury set records in Canada this Christmas.

Usually cold Montreal registered a warm 57.4 degrees to lead four eastern Canadian cities in establishing record highs for Dec. 25.

Theft Of Mailbags Is Probed

San Rafael postal authorities today were investigating the theft of four mailbags containing Christmas packages mailed at the Purity Store in the Montecito Shopping Center on Christmas Eve.

The loss came to light yesterday morning when an unidentified caller complained to San Rafael police about trash dumped at Main Drive and San Pedro Road.

Police found the debris included Christmas wrapping paper and boxes which had been mailed to out-of-town addresses by three San Rafael residents.

Later it was learned that all the packages had been mailed at the Purity Store.

Store manager Ronald L. Winegarden said he had placed four mail sacks outside the store when it closed at 7 p.m. Thursday, and had called the post office to tell them the bags would be there for pick-up.

Postal inspector Hugh Cassidy, however, reported that the mail sacks were not there when a postal truck went by at 7:15.

Packages involved, contents not known by police, were sent by Ethel Eddy of 295 Union Street, Delbert C. Sanford of 49 Blossom Drive and Thomas G. Slipper of 128 Belle Avenue.

Further investigation will be handled by postal authorities, police said.

HAYLIFT BY A.F.

Marin Air Reservists Fly Livestock Mercy Mission

When thousands of livestock faced death from starvation in 40-below zero cold in eastern Montana, the government called on the part-time fliers of the 349th Troop Carrier Wing, an Air Force Reserve unit headquartered at Hamilton Air Force Base.

They did the job.

Flying in the wake of a blizzard, the first plane left Hamilton Dec. 18. It was joined by others from Sacramento, Portland, Ore., and Everett, Wash. Another call on Sunday, Dec. 20 sent other planes from Hamilton to join the haylift which dropped feed to some 100,000 cattle and 200,000 sheep.

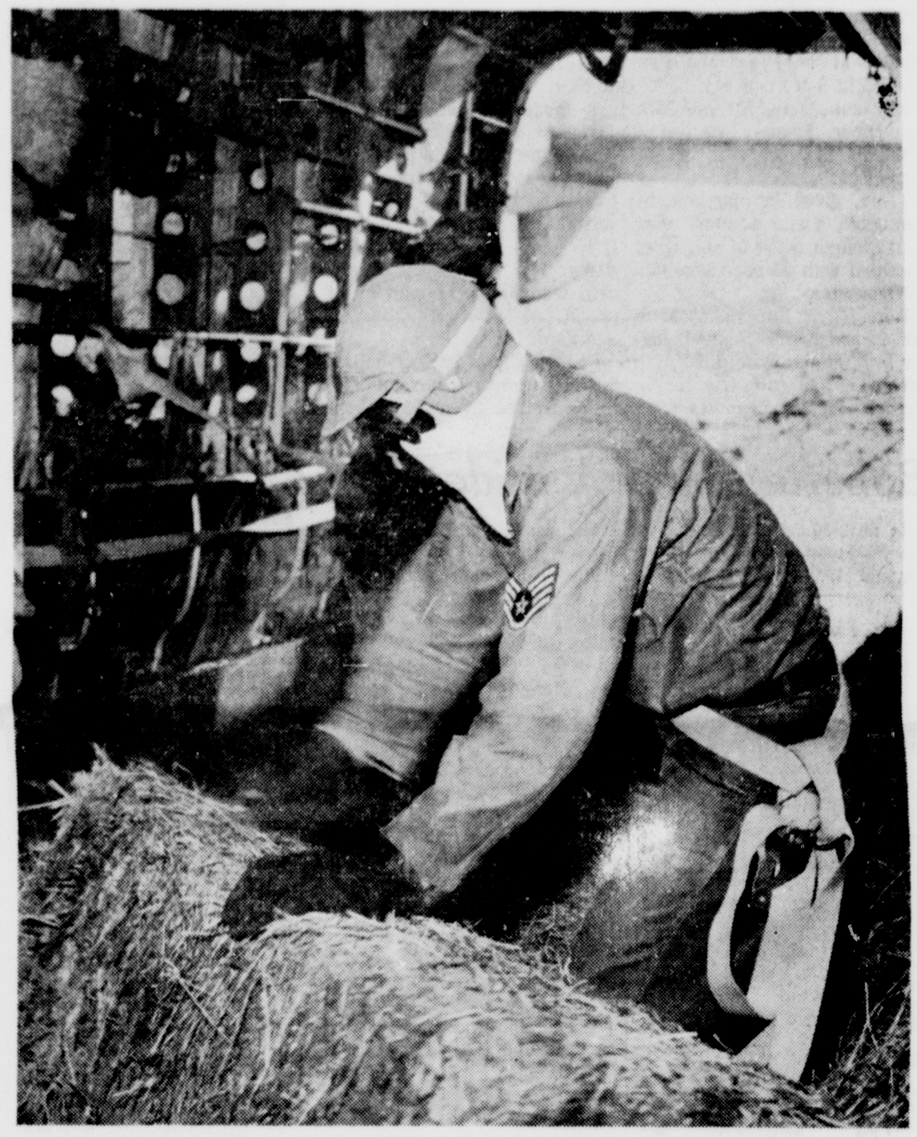
As the blizzard wore itself out, the temperature rose—to five degrees above zero on Monday.

The planes were stationed at Malmstrom Air Force Base near Miles City, Mont. Men from that air base loaded them for the reservists, who flew one or two missions per day, depending on the distance to the cattle.

Sixty-six men from the 349th answered the call. They did not return to their homes until Wednesday and Thursday. All are civilian reservists who volunteered to help save the livestock.

President Lyndon B. Johnson authorized expenditure of $100,000 to buy the hay and send the planes to the eight-county area of eastern Montana to save the snowbound and starving livestock.

AERIAL LIFE-SAVERS—Climax of a life-saving operation by the 349th Troop Carrier Wing—to save the lives of snowbound cattle in Montana—came as bales of hay were pushed out of C-119 Flying Boxcars onto the snow-clogged hills below. Here T/Sgt. Dewayne W. Lockhart of 9 Katlas Court, Novato, and S/Sgt. Arlen Davids of 1564 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, push the bales out. Note the men are strapped in because they dropped the hay from elevation of about 50 feet—far too low for a parachute to open if they should have been pulled out.



MASKED MAN ON MERCY FLIGHT—S/gt. Arlen Davids of 1564 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, wears a mask as he drops hay from rear of Flying Boxcar. The mask is not a protection from the cold, but against the flying hay. The rear cargo doors were removed during the haylift and the backdraft blew hay back at the men with cutting force.

HAY TRUCK TOO HIGH—In the rush of getting hay to the starving cattle, no one thought to measure the height of the rear of a C-119. Consequently trucks of hay which were sent to the haylift headquarters at Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mont., were too high. The men had to unload the top two layers of bales onto the ground before the truck could back under the tail of the huge plane to facilitate handling the hay.

LOADING MADE EASIER—Men from Malmstrom Air Force Base did the work of loading hay on the C-119s which reservists from Hamilton Air Force Base flew and dropped to snowbound cattle. Automatic loader went to work after two layers of hay bales were forked off truck. Each trip of the Flying Boxcars carried five tons of hay to the cattle. Each plane made one or two trips per day.

STRANDED BY BLIZZARD—Here are some of the stranded cattle, as seen from a haylift plane. Only tops of brush stick from snow as the animals try in vain to find forage. Thousands died, but other thousands were saved by the hay-flying mercy mission of Bay Area Air Reservists from Hamilton Air Force Base.

MR. AND MRS. ROY EDWARD DINER

Diner-Reed Vows Exchanged

Tonia Patricia Reed, daughter of Mrs. Charles Reed of San Francisco, became the bride of Roy Edward Diner at 2 p.m. Sunday at SS. Peter and Paul Church in San Francisco.

Roy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Diner, former San Rafael residents now residing in San Francisco.

Roy, the brother of Mrs. John Donohoe of Dublin, attended San Francisco City College prior to serving three years with the U.S. Army Engineers in Germany. He is presently associated with his father and brothers in Leo Diner Films, Inc., in San Francisco.

Following a wedding trip to Santa Barbara, the couple will reside in San Francisco.

Babette Miller A Bride

In an 8:30 p.m. ceremony on Wednesday at the home of Judge Samuel W. Gardiner, Babette Miller became the bride of Lee Shackelford.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Miller of San Rafael.

The newlyweds will make their home in San Francisco, where the bridegroom is serving with the U. S. Navy.

Two-In-One Shoe-Soks

Not socks with heavier soles in them, but knee socks attached to very shoe-looking shoes are the newest in two-in-one garments. The shoes in soft kid of many colors have a hard thin sole and criss-cross strings. The socks are attached at the shoe throat.

Since the socks has no foot of its own (other than the shoe) it does not need washing very often, the makers claim. They provide directions for hand-cleaning.

Where are polka dots in fashion these days? On lingerie, dot's where. Spots big and little are sprinkled, or spattered on bras, half-slips, petticoats, even girdles.

Officers Assn. To Have Party

Members and wives of the local chapter of the Retired Officers Assn. will meet at 6:30 p.m., on Jan. 7 for cocktails and buffet dinner at the Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club. Reservations chairman is Capt. E. F. Springer, 48 Plymouth Ave., Mill Valley.

Luxury Separates

Even separates for milady are off on a luxury kick. The long evening skirt paired with a matching top goes on and on, with some of the best done in velveteen. One sample: caramel-colored velveteen for a trio of after-dark separates that makes the most of refined line and elegant fabric. The eased, ankle-long slim skirt is topped by a bare-armed shell blouse, U-necked fore and aft—plus a cardigan jacket. The ensemble blends well with jewels, champagne suppers and candlelight.

CCPT Board Of Managers Will Meet

The board of managers of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers will meet Jan. 5-7, at the Sheraton Palace Hotel, San Francisco. Subjects of special concern will be considered by study committees on Jan. 6.

Mrs. G. J. Sirex of San Mateo, director of the public welfare department, has invited Robert Smith, director, Probation Study for Board of Corrections, to meet with the public welfare committee. He will present the recently completed probation study augmented with charts graphs.

The Parent and Family Life Education committee will study proposed legislation which pertains to family life such as divorce procedures, conciliation courts, and family counseling services.

Mrs. Laurence B. Martin of Los Angeles, CCPT vice president, and chairman of the mass media committee, said her committee will study the interim report on television and juvenile delinquency of the subcommittee of the Senate of the 88th Congress.

The health study committee plans to develop an educational program on cigarette smoking which will be made available to P-TA units when completed. Mrs. Everett Barr, Yreka, director of health, has asked Dr. Sol R. Baker, president, California division of American Cancer Society, Miss Dorothy Belcher, coordinator of the interagency council on cigarette smoking and health, and Miss Pat Hill, consultant Bureau of Health Education, State Department of Education, to meet with the health committee to assist in the program planning.

Representatives of the northern section of California Assn. of Secondary School Administrators have been invited to attend the general session of the board of managers on Jan. 7. Following the board meeting, the CASSA-P-TA Liaison committee and the P-TA district presidents of the northern area will convene for the annual regional conference.

On Jan. 8, a leadership training course for the 35 district P-TA presidents will be conducted.

Marin Women

MR. AND MRS. LARRY KINDER

Newlywed Larry D. Kinders Will Reside In Fairfax

Fairfax is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry D. Kinder (Katie Donovan) who were married recently at Park Wedding Chapel in Reno, the Rev. W. D. Ward officiating.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Donovan of San Rafael, Katie was given in marriage by her father. She wore a velvet white brocaded dress with bell skirt and scooped neckline.

After the ceremony a reception was given for the bridal party at the Holiday Lodge. The couple then took a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, Virginia City and Yosemite.

A reception will be given for the young couple by the bride's parents.

The bride was graduated from San Rafael High School and has been employed with Pierre's Office Machines in Mill Valley.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Kinder of Fairmount, Ind. He was graduated from Mississinewa High School in Marion, Ind. and is employed with Tru Star Corp. in San Rafael. He is the brother of Jay Kinder of Novato, William Kinder, of Louisiana, Mrs. Pat Clifford of Illinois, Peggy, Leslie, Chris and Jimmie Kinder and Mary Ann and Buddy Hood, all of Indiana.

Tips Can Help Hostesses To Stay Out Of Kitchen

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hostess who is apt to find herself spending more time in the kitchen than with her hosts might take heed of the following strain-saving advice. It comes from a maker of food and liquor products.

— Chill cocktail glasses if you're planning to serve cocktails. Simply put them in the refrigerator a short time before guests are scheduled to arrive. And prepare the canapes — about an hour or two before the party begins.

—Plan ahead. Set up snack tables so that there's one for each chair. Fill cigarette boxes and distribute matchbooks or table lighters. Get liquor bottles, jiggers, openers and stirrers lined up for action. Have mixers and highball glasses out and ready for pouring.

—When offering drinks, don't ask "What'll you have?" Stick to one or two of the basic beverages which blend well with such mixes as ginger ale and fruit juices. Vodka, for example, mixes well with fruit juice, soda, tomato juice, even broth.

Alpha Phi Alumnae Plan Holiday Coffee On Tuesday

The Alpha Phi Alumnae of Marin will have a holiday coffee honoring the mothers of girls pledged in 1963 and 1964 on Tuesday from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the home of Mrs. Bryan R. McCarthy, 12 Dorian Way, San Rafael. Pledges and actives will also be invited.

Radar May Be Used To Dry Clothing

ATLANTA (UPI) — Radar may be used in the near future to dry clothes.

Don Lyons, a young mechanical engineering student at Georgia Tech, is currently experimenting with microwaves to discover exactly how they withdraw moisture.

Engineers already know cotton and synthetic materials dry much faster when exposed to microwaves of radio wavelength than when dried by ordinary household radiant energy.

Lyons is working to determine if still shorter wavelengths of radar will do an even better job so "ovens" can be built and used by textile manufacturers to dry cakes of yarn in minutes instead of hours.

This is important in the textile industry because yarn must usually be wet, bleached, dyed and dried three to four times.

Microwaves of radio frequency have been used by textile manufacturers drying synthetic materials like rayon for a few years now—at a cost roughly three times that of radiant heat.

The system is not as efficient as it should be, but it does cut drying time from 130 hours to 20 minutes. Radiant heat drying of synthetics is extremely slow because temperatures must be kept very low or the material will scorch.

Lyons believes that radar wave ovens would dry a cake of yarn in only 10 minutes, and at low costs.

For his experiments, the condidate for a doctoral degree is using a small microwave oven now produced commercially and sold to restaurant owners for re-heating pre-cooked foods.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD KLAPPERICH

Elizabeth A. Tremblay Is Bride Of Donald Klapperich

Elizabeth Ann Tremblay and Donald H. Klapperich of Novato were united in marriage at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato on Dec. 12.

The Rev. Thomas J. Burns officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride, the daughter of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Joseph Tremblay, was given in marriage by her father.

Elizabeth wore a floor length satin gown with chapel train with an illusion veil. Her maid of honor, sister of the bridegroom, Denise Klapperich, wore a street length dress of green brocade.

The bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Klapperich of Novato, was attended by Darryl Hagedon of Petaluma. Usher was Julian Pritchard of Novato.

The bride was graduated from San Rafael High School and Bay City Medical College. She is employed as a dental nurse in a Novato office. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Treffle J. Morin of Rhode Island.

Donald was graduated from Novato High School, attended College of Marin and is a senior at the University of California. He is the grandson of Mrs. Alma Fabbri of Sonoma.

The reception was held at the Lodge in Novato, followed by a wedding trip to Southern California. The young couple are living in Novato and the bridegroom is employed at the Roger-Wilco Store.

Develop Readiness For Future

What can parents do now to prepare their children for the world of 1970s? According to a national survey of experts in the fields of automation, education and research, parents were advised to:

Develop in their children a strong willingness to learn, instill in their children a sense of curiosity and encourage their children to welcome challenges.

These qualities will be most important in the next decade because, the experts predicted that the leap between today and tomorrow will be far greater than the mere step that separates yesterday from today; and the impact on our children will be momentous . . . not only will our children have to graduate to more sophisticated jobs, where brain will increasingly replace brawn; also they must expect to change their occupations three times in their lives. They will have to absorb not only a college education but also additional formal learning throughout their lives.

Many of them will have to become accustomed not merely to a shorter work week but to a world where leisure will be the center, not the fringe, of life. They will, in brief, have to become infinitely more adaptable to change and to learning than any previous generation.

The survey gave the following examples of how parents can help develop the learning instinct in their children:

Ask questions around children. "Why is the grass green?" "Why is the sky blue?" Don't expect them to know the answers, but get them accustomed to saying "Why?" to everything.

When children bring work home from school, ask them to explain it to you. If they sense a sincere interest on your part, they will feel enthusiastic when you grasp their explanation.

To introduce the element of challenge, introduce an aura of specialness to the family library. If you keep the door locked and have the key hanging right beside the door, children will have to make a little added effort to get in. In this way, they will sense the specialness of the library.

Encourage children to take an interest in world affairs by marking newspaper articles of special interest with a red pencil. Children usually will want to read such articles so they can take part in lively family discussions. This airing of both sides of an issue helps children keep open minds on controversial subjects.

Try an unconvential way of using a game to help a child gain an appreciation for mathematics and the sciences. For example, a parent can teach his child not only chess but poker and blackjack as well without seeming to be frivolous.

Parties Planned This Week

By MOLLY MARIN

A host of holiday parties have been planned for this weekend. Entertaining tomorrow are the William Lewises of San Anselmo; the Sydney Dorns of San Rafael and the L. J. Breslins of Ross.

THE HANK GRANDINS of Ross have extended invitations to a house warming party on Jan. 2 at their Bear Creek Estates home in Alpine Meadows.

THE FORMER Flora Lee Simpson, now Mrs. John T. McClennan, has moved back to San Rafael. She and her husband have bought a house with large grounds at 344 Summit Ave. He has a printing business in San Francisco. Flora Lee, who had a printing shop in Sebastopool, is an active member of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

MR. AND MRS. Joseph Bregante will entertain at cocktails in their Peacock Gap home on New Year's Eve. Among the 30 guests will be Betty Jane Bregante, home for the holidays from University of California at Davis, and her escort for the evening, Doug Cusamono of Stockton.

Also in the group will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carpenter of Mill Valley, and, from San Rafael, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sauter and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lavendar. After cocktails, the Bregantes and their guests will move on to the Peacock Gap Country Club for a New Year's Eve celebration.

SEW SIMPLE

Use Of Long Zipper Solves Overblouse Problem Easily

By EUNICE FARMER

Once again it's time for me to wish you the most exciting and happiest New Year ever.

It's also a time to thank you for your letters, loyalty and enthusiasm about Sew Simple. Many of you will begin the New Year with a new sewing machine. Make up your mind to begin sewing as soon as the holiday decorations are put away, it's a great time of the year to go into your new venture.

Remember, we want a "made by hand" look, not a "home made" look. Be enthusiastic and patient. Don't give up and you'll reach the point where you would rather make your clothes than buy them. Don't forget, that ripping is part of sewing. I'll be at your side to inspire you.

Every time I decide to make an overblouse, I run my legs off trying to find a zipper the right length. Besides, you have to be an acrobat to get one fastened at the back—if you are lucky enough to find one. What's the answer?

Mrs. M. M.

Dear Mrs. M. M.:

Many of the newest overblouses on expensive clothes have eliminated the separating type zipper. You may do that, too.

Measure from the neckline to within two or three inches of the finished hem, and buy a lightweight neck-opening zipper. You will finish the lower edge of your overblouse with a standard closed seam and insert the zipper as you would any neck-line zipper.

You'll be delighted with the smooth, finished appearance of your overblouse and the long zipper will still leave enough room to make it comparatively easy to put on and take off.

This week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner is Mrs. Eugene E. Schmitt, San Diego, who offers the money-saving suggestion:

My husband reads the funnies first, I grab the women's section and read your "Sew Simple."

The other day I was making a cummerbund and found that I didn't have enough interfacing for it. It occurred to me to use my zig-zag stitch on all the odd ends of the same weight of interfacing and piece them together. When I cut off the length I needed, no one could tell it had been pieced five times.

(This idea will save you money by putting your scraps to good use. Just be sure to lay one section over the other when piecing, to avoid a bulky seam.)

A few weeks ago you gave a quick way of shortening boys' trousers. I'm a beginner and thought it would be easy, but when I got ready to sew the cuffs back on, there wasn't enough room on the cut edge of the trouser legs.

Mrs. J. M.

Dear Mrs. J. M.:

Gosh, is my face red! I try to make my instructions so detailed that beginners will understand—but I sure goofed this time.

Because the legs of the trousers are tapered (becoming smaller at the cuff), you will have to take in the trousers slightly on the inner seam so that the cut edge will now be the same size as the cuff you cut off.

While we are on this subject, very often you will have trouble shortening any tapered sleeve or trousers by simply making the hem deeper. There won't be enough room at the lower edge to fit the garment above the hemline. Restitch your seams, beginning just above the hemline. When you get to the exact hemline, angle the stitching so you make extra room at the cut edge.

You, too, can win a Tailor Trix pressing board. Perhaps you have a good idea or sewing tip that you would like to share with the rest of us. Every week I choose a winner. Send all questions and sewing tips to Sew Simple, in care of the Independent-Journal.

The Editor's Notebook

After One Year, Column Still Plugs Shakespeare

LIGHT THE BIRTHDAY candle, reader.

On the first Saturday of 1964, it was introduced thus:

"This space at the upper left of the editorial page, as regular readers of the I-J well know, has for decades been occupied each day including Saturdays by 'Today's Editorial,' expressing this newspaper's somewhat impersonal opinions on current matters.

"Today, the first Saturday of the new year, there is a change. The I-J's editor henceforth will be expressing opinions in this space each Saturday. They will be more personal, less impersonal.

"Content will range far and wide, limited only by what the editor sees and hears. Sometimes it will be trivia; other times, I hope, profound and significant.

"Whether this change in approach one day a week turns out to be an improvement or merely a change, I-J readers will soon determine for themselves."

Great as the temptation is to comment now on the first year's output of "The Notebook," I'll resist it and stand firm on the original observation that readers will judge for themselves.

THAT FIRST "NOTEBOOK" a year ago dealt in part with Jack Aranson's presentation of a Shakespeare play at the Gate Theater in Sausalito. (It was "The Merchant of Venice.")

"It deserves to be seen by far more people. . . .

"I hope the slim attendance at 'The Merchant' doesn't discourage Aranson from staging another Shakespeare play at some future date."

Aranson himself responded promptly with assurances that there would be more Shakespeare at the Gate.

And so there is. Right now, a year later. As the 400th anniversary year of The Bard's birth comes to a close, Aranson's company is performing "Hamlet." The reviews have been most laudatory.

But Aranson reports a curious observation. Groups of school children have been brought from Santa Rosa, San Leandro, Santa Clara, and elsewhere to Marin to see Shakespeare's "Hamlet." But other than a group each from Redwood High and Edna Maguire schools (plus a few individual students from Tam High), Marin County students have been conspicuous by their absence from performances of Shakespeare at the Gate.

This is, of course, tragic.

A year ago "The Notebook" said, "If I were going to school all over again, I would want to see Shakespeare plays first, before trying to read and understand them. Then perhaps I would not have to wait until I was out of school a quarter of a century before I began to appreciate more fully what they have to say."

When a really fine company presents Shakespeare in Marin, it provides a really great opportunity for all the school-age youth of the community. Too bad that teachers and parents are permitting this opportunity to be neglected.

Aranson's company has admirably discharged the obligation of a professional, classical theater to the Marin community.

It is most unfortunate that thus far our Marin schools seem to have ignored the opportunity to have students see The Bard-in-action.

And all the while students from more distant places have been brought to Marin to see "Hamlet."

Dream Junking

Dreams have always fascinated man. Our superstitious ancestors thought that dreams were manifestations of the occult. Then came psycho-analysis and Freud who taught that dreams symbolized our suppressed selves. Then Jung, who thought dreams were a reliving of man's primitive history.

Now, someone has come up with an interesting new theory, that dreams are the mind's way of dredging up and throwing away the clutter and junk of useless information and feelings which we all unwillingly accumulate each day. It is called "dream-junking." Of course, we wonder just what apparatus decides what things to junk.

We remember some things we'd just as soon forget, and forget plenty we'd like to remember. Perhaps the difference between a genius and us ordinary folk might be that a genius has a more effective dream-junker.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BRICKBAT to old man weather for dampening some of the holiday joy by unleashing a storm and flood reminiscent of the 1955 downpour.

A BOUQUET to San Rafael City Clerk W. L. (Lynn) Morgan, who retires after more than 11 years on the job.

A BOUQUET to Mr. and Mrs. John S. Fontez of San Rafael on their golden wedding anniversary.

BOUQUETS to the many homeowners, who managed to put up beautiful yule decorations despite the storm, and thus adding to the Christmas spirit of their communities.

BOUQUETS to L. E. (Bud) Castner of Sonoma County for taking over as president of the Golden Gate Bridge District, and to outgoing President Ben K. Lerer for a job well done.

BOUQUETS to volunteer groups, such as Novato High School student body, for conducting Christmas charity drives to bring cheer to the less fortunate.

WISH THEM WELL

The novelist Thackeray wisely said: "Benevolent feeling ennobles the most trifling actions."

The quality of benevolence may be better understood if you recall its origin. It is derived from the Latin "bene" meaning "well," and "volens" which signifies "wishing."

If you are sincere and constant in wishing or willing well to others, you are truly benevolent. Confucius went so far as to say that "He who wishes to secure the good of others has already secured his own."

Do all you can to develop the divine art of desiring what is best for others, and of rejoicing in every success that they achieve in a constructive manner.

Remember, too, that the more your heart, mind and soul are filled with benevolent thoughts, the more likely they are to overflow into benevolent deeds.

Encourage other people to get beyond self-centeredness. Seek the well-being and advantages of those in particular who are deprived of the temporal and spiritual blessings that God wishes all of us to share.

"Charity is patient, is kind . . . thinks no evil, does not rejoice over wickedness, but rejoices with the truth."

(1 Corinthians 13:4-6)

Teach me, O Holy Spirit, to wish and will what is good for all men.

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I would like to respond to Mr. Henington's emotional, irrational and, at times, completely unfactual letter of Dec. 19 about the recent demonstrations at the University of California.

. . . It is not a small minority of the students involved in the halting of normal educational functions so that a greater atmosphere of learning can exist in the future. Noon rallies on the steps of Sproul Hall drew as many as 6,000 students (Dec. 7, 1964) and frequently drew 3,000 and more. Four thousand students took part in the protest walk to University Hall on Nov. 20, 1964. Furthermore, in the recent student elections, every candidate running on the "Free Speech Platform" won and many won by the greatest majority in student election history. The FSM was, in addition, composed of 19 student organizations ranging from the W. E. B. DuBois Club to the Students for Goldwater. It should be further noticed that the members of the Academic Senate had no part in the organization of the student demonstrations whose ultimate purpose was achieved, i.e., the discussion of the issues of advocacy on campus and equal protection under the Constitution both on and off campus. . . .

Yes, Mr. Henington, you and many others are "footing the bill," but you must remember the greatness of the University comes from its faculty and students and not from any amount of political support or money. . . .

Broadcast College Of Marin Concerts?

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Once again the College of Marin Music Department upheld its excellent reputation by presenting two delightful pre-Christmas concerts. The premise that states, "one gets what one pays for" does not hold true for the school's free admission concerts. The good crowd that braved the rains to attend the Christmas Choral Concert bears witness to the fact that many people will brave the elements to hear good music. However, it is apparent that some people who enjoy hearing good music are not able to attend such community functions.

The college has responded in this area of community-school relations by broadcasting several football and basketball games. Following along these same lines, is there any possibility of broadcasting future concerts presented by the music department?

Pretty Material Can Hold Fire Dangers

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I recently made my daughter a brocade Christmas dress. As a safety factor, this material, and probably other materials too, is extremely flammable. At this season of the year, extra precaution should be taken. Having been burned myself, at a much younger age, be aware of the terrible danger. The material burns as rapidly as Cellophane.

Enclosed is a swatch of the material. Drop a match on it, and realize the hazard.

Christmastide Is Shining Hour For Otherwise Unloved Fatso

NEW YORK (AP) — Every person has a reason to enjoy the Christmas season.

But the fat man has the most reasons. It is his time of year. He basks in the shadow of the overpowering public acceptance of the plumpness of Santa Claus.

THE WEEK BEFORE Christmas and the week after the fat man is the symbol of plenty and joy on an earth that has never had too much of either.

The phrase, "Nobody loves a fat man" becomes the phrase, "Everybody loves a fat man." It is no longer un-American to be overweight.

The fat man becomes a kind of walking Christmas tree spreading gladness and contentment wherever he goes.

The people who used to laugh at him now laugh with him. Anything he says is cheery and jolly and funny.

THEY LOVE TO SEE the fat man's chuckle spread from one dimple across his wide facial horizon to the other dimple, then ripple down his three or four chins and echo back with a deep belly laugh.

Those who normally punch his protuberant tummy in ridicule now pat it with affectionate respect, for it stands for something they recognize as important: mankind having a good time in a sorry century.

And the fat man, the ambulant shaven image of Santa Claus, loves his role to the hilt.

"Pass me the mashed potatoes," he cries deliriously. "Where's the gravy? Be sure to save me two pieces of mince pie for dessert."

And strangers in the restaurant look up and smile and beckon to a waiter and tell him, "Send that fat fellow over there an after-lunch drink, and put it on my bill."

Yes, the fat man is the hero of the hour. All are pleased as Punch to see him waddling merrily by.

AND WHAT ABOUT the fat man himself? Does he really relish this unexpected bonus of adulation? Is he all that happy within?

No, sad to relate, he is only playing Pagliacci for the fickle crowd, hollering "Ho, ho, ho!" outside, while inside he is crying to himself, "Boo, hoo, hoo!"

During the Christmas season he stuffs himself more than he really wants to, he overeats to please the mob, because this is what they demand of him. He is an actor who must satisfy his audience. The show must go on.

BUT HE KNOWS that on the first of January the show will end. The season of overindulgence will be over. The fat man will again become for the next 50 weeks just a guy taking up too much space in a crowded world.

Big U.S. Problem In Vietnam Is Getting People To Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American problem in Vietnam becomes more obvious the worse the situation gets. It's more than just helping the people fight the Communists; it's trying to get them to be willing to fight.

The American - supported war, despite the billions of dollars in military and economic help poured in there, is going down hill while the Communists, united under a dedicated and single purpose, are getting stronger.

THE SOUTH Vietnamese through their own dissensions—there are Buddhist, Catholic, military, political and student factions — are doing as much to lose the fight as anything the Communists can do to them.

Over the weekend came the sixth upheaval in government over the past 13 months, starting with the coup that ended in the assassination of President Ngo Dinh Diem in November 1963.

This time a group of young army officers dissolved the legislature and arrested some of its members, thus establishing military instead of civilian control.

THUS, WHILE the factions struggle for control in Saigon, the Communists overrun the countryside and the American ambassador, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, slides deeper into frustration. There's no end to this chaos in sight.

Taylor, in a private conversation with Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, commander in chief of the armed forces, warned that the United States didn't like last weekend's development at all.

Khanh hit back with defiance to Washington—although without American help it's impossible to see how South Vietnam can survive the Communist attack—by solidly backing the young generals' purge of the civilian government.

HE WARNED against foreign intervention in Vietnamese affairs and indicated the purge would not be undone.

Washington faces this situation: If the United States should pull out of Vietnam, almost certainly the country would be lost to communism. Eventually perhaps all Southeast Asia, which is under the shadow of Red China, would fall under Communist rule.

If the United States continues help—and American lives and wealth continue to be lost—and the endless coups go on, chaos and the loss of Vietnam seem inevitable.

TUESDAY NIGHT after what must have been a lot of sober thought the United States warned South Vietnam's military leaders that continued U.S. support is based on existence of a Saigon government "free of improper interference."

This was in the traditional diplomatic language of vagueness. It could mean an ultimatum that there would be a cut-off in U.S. aid if the military does not leave the civilian government alone. But it didn't say so.

If the United States felt it had to pull out, and thereafter South Vietnam was lost, American prestige around the world would suffer heavy damage.

THE VIETNAMESE military men are probably banking on that: the idea that the United States, no matter how harsh it sounds, will be willing to endure repeated frustrations rather than admit defeat to the world by pulling out.

The gravest problem this country has had to face in trying to get the South Vietnamese and their government—until now any government—to fight off the Communist penetration from North Vietnam was this simple fact that the people of the area have not truly been on their own—their own unaided masters—for 80 years. Not since the French in 1884 made what used to be called Indochina a protectorate, which is a euphemism for colony.

In short, they have had little experience in governing themselves.

BARKER ON CHINA

Snake, Beetles, Dog —All Are Good Food

NOW THAT the Christmas turkey and stuffing have been tucked away and a host of holiday goodies have been dipped into, it might be interesting to consider some special-occasion foods of China and Hong Kong. In times of famine, the Chinese have been forced to eat things we would consider inedible. And they found them good.

Right now it is the time for snake in the Colony. It is considered cold-weather food. The big "King of the Snakes" shop is in downtown Hong Kong. Here, in dozens of cages, are snakes to suit every taste. You select your snake and see it butchered and cleaned. The snake bile is put in a small glass of port wine and sold to tourists as an aid to digestion or to assure longevity or something. Snake meat and snake skin soup are allegedly gourmet delights.

GIANT DIVING Beetles resemble the local cockroaches so closely that I had to look them up in Zim's "Insects" before I would touch them. They are quite large, with hairy hind legs, and taste like good, crisp, fried chicken skin. The proper way to eat them is to break off the head and the insides come out with it, then break off the wings and legs. They grow in irrigated fields and are scavengers. The Chinese believe them to be an aphrodisiac.

Another product of the irrigated paddies is what they call "rice fish." They are tiny things that look like a cross between a minnow and a night crawler, and are almost transparent. At Steinhart Aquarium they are labeled "Loaches." When cooked, they turn white as rice or cooked egg white. They taste bland, not at all fishy, and quite good. Like egg white again.

THE BEST thing I ate during my years in Hong Kong was grass carp soup. It was simply delicious and the best part was its large liver. No, I'm not kidding. It was out of this world. The Chinese Reds have a monopoly on grass carp and permit only the male fish to be exported.

Of course, dog, and more particularly tender, young puppy, is relished by some Chinese, and despite efforts of the canine-loving English to discourage dog for dinner, there is much dog consumed in the Colony. Anyone caught with dog meat is subject to a stiff fine, but that does not deter the true dog devotee. It is supposed to be delicious when properly prepared. Perhaps my tastebuds were tainted with Anglo-Saxon prejudice against eating man's best friend, but I thought it no great treat.

IN SPITE of these and a few other exotic things, most Cantonese cooking is composed of quite ordinary items cooked in their inimitable manner which makes many of us believe they are the world's finest cooks.

The Country Parson

"One of a preacher's problems is to decide when a church member is dead enough to be buried."

Mill Valley Church To Host Students' Peace Conference

High school-age members of 20 congregations of the United Church of Christ will attend a three-day peace forum beginning tomorrow at the Mill Valley Community Church.

The forum is to be sponsored by the California Conference of the United Church of Christ. Rev. Jack Bartlett, assistant minister of the Mill Valley church is coordinator; Tamalpais High School student Jack Vogenson will serve as dean of the conference.

More than 30 youths from Marin County and churches throughout northern California are expected to participate.

REV. JACK BARTLETT
Coordinates meeting

"The purpose of this peace forum," explained Rev. Bartlett, "is to help our young men and women understand the issues of war and peace and how they can help their church and community serve in the cause of peace. We want to integrate their religious commitment with the political challenge of moving toward peace without loss of freedom or war."

Dr. Robert Birge of the University of California physics department will speak to the conferees on "can Democracy be secure with an arms race?" Other speakers will include Bryce W. Anderson, city editor of the Independent-Journal; John Robinson, president of the Marin United Nations Assn.; Gordon Gibson, Peace Center of Marin coordinator; Rabbi Bernard Ducoff, vice chairman of the San Francisco Committee on Religion and Peace and executive director of the Bureau of Jewish Education for San Francisco, Marin and the Peninsula;

Chaplain Wallace Bennett, San Francisco Presidio; Robert Pickus, West Coast director of Turn toward Peace, and Rev. Herbert Allen, youth programs director for the Northern California Conference of United Church of Christ.

Meals, housing and other arrangements for the conclave are being handled by Mrs. Jack Hurley and other members of the Mill Valley congregation.

One session of the forum, at 8:15 p.m. Monday, will be open to the public, with the topic "full employment without war—can we meet the challenge?" The speaker has not yet been announced.

Four other United Church of Christ school-age forums will be held simultaneously in San Francisco, Hayward, Stockton and Sacramento. Their subjects will involve social problems and ways to alleviate them, ranging from discussions on political involvement through persons with special needs and problems of the megalopolis.

RABBI DUCOFF
Speaker for peace

The youth forums are a groundwork for next June's statewide forum for youth and adults in San Francisco, on the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

Holy Innocents Patronal Feast To Be Monday

Monday will be the Patronal Feast Day for the congregation of Holy Innocents Episcopal Parish in Corte Madera.

The special event will begin with 6:30 a.m. mass, followed by a day-long adoration in which members of the parish will spend half-hour watch periods in the church until 6:30 p.m.

Potluck supper and the annual vestry meeting will follow in the parish hall.

Holy Innocents' choir, directed by Dr. S. Drummond Wolff, will present a concert of Christmas and festival music, with solo vocalists and organ solos by Dr. Wolff. The program will begin at 8:30 p.m.; the concert is open to the public.

Ordination Due For Marinite At Eastern Campus

Richard D. Reece, native of San Rafael, will be ordained to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church, on Jan. 6 at Sewanee, Tenn. He is chaplain of the Sewanee Military Academy, and formerly served a chaplain's interneship at San Quentin Prison.

The future priest was graduated in June from the school of theology of the University of the South with a bachelor of divinity degree. He previously earned a bachelor's degree in psychology at Memphis State University.

Rt. Rev. William E. Sanders, bishop coadjutor of Tennessee, will conduct the ordination rite, assisted by numerous other Episcopalian leaders.

CHRISTMAS VACATION PROJECT

Working during their Christmas vacation, 26 students from Oberlin College are laboring in winter muck, to rebuild the Antioch Baptist Church in Ripley, Miss. The church was burned to the ground Oct. 30 following a civil rights rally. Driving stake to align the foundation is 20-year-old Oberlin senior Marcia Aronoff, of Middletown, Ohio.

Church Group Strives For Racial Equality

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In December, 1950, leaders of 29 Protestant and Orthodox denominations met in Cleveland and established an organization called "The national Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A."

During the 14 years of its existence, the National Council of Churches, hereinafter referred to as the NCC, has developed into the nation's largest cooperative religious organization. It now includes 31 denominations with 40 million members.

Along the way, the NCC also managed to become an exceedingly controversial body. The very mention of its name is enough to make some conservative church members wax choleric. Foes of the NCC are particularly numerous in the South.

At the recent general convention of the Episcopal Church in St. Louis, southern delegates made a strenuous but unsuccessful effort to pull the denomination out of the NCC. Similar withdrawal moves have been made—and defeated—at the national conventions of several other major Protestant bodies which have sizable constituencies in the south, including the Methodist Church, the Presbyterian U.S. Church, and the Disciples of Christ. The issue doesn't arise in the Southern Baptist Convention, because it has never joined the NCC.

Opposition to the NCC is so strong in some southern congregations that they have taken steps to withhold funds from their parent denominations until assured that none of their money will wind up in the NCC's treasury.

The NCC operates on a budget of about 14 million dollars a year, contributed mostly by its member denominations. About 95 per cent of this money is spent on religious and service activities that the member denominations used to perform individually but now carry on cooperatively. For example, the NCC's overseas relief department, Church World Service, distributes food, clothing and medicine to needy families in 50 nations. The division of Christian education prepares Sunday School materials, especially audio-visual aids which are very costly for any denomination to produce on its own. The division of foreign missions coordinates the work of 70 mission boards in 65 countries. The home missions division provides an interdenominational ministry to migrant farm workers and visitors to national parks.

Had the NCC stuck to such activities as these, it would never have become controversial. But from the outset, it has also sought to serve as "a voice of Christian conscience" on social issues. It has been particularly outspoken on race relations.

In June, 1952—two years before the Supreme Court's famous ruling on school segregation—the NCC's policy-making general board declared that segregation is "diametrically opposed to what Christians believe" about the brotherhood of man and the dignity of every individual as a child of God.

Since that time, the 270-member general board, which meets three times a year, and the 700-member general assembly, which meets every three years, have repeatedly put the NCC on record in favor of speedy and total elimination of racial barriers.

Particularly distressing to some southern church members were the NCC's role in training the hundreds of civil rights workers who went into Mississippi last summer, and its participation in a project to bring religious workers from other nations into Mississippi as "Missionaries for racial justice."

Segregation is only one of the touchy issues on which the NCC has taken a forthright stand. It also came out against right-to-work laws, and said that government programs of medicare for the aged may be necessary if voluntary health insurance fails to meet needs. Although the NCC itself has never advocated recognition of Red China, a "study conference" which met under its auspices in 1958 did say that U. S. interests would be served by opening a diplomatic channel to Peiping.

In recent years, the NCC has been a favorite target of extreme right wing groups, which have given wide circulation to charges that it is communist-infiltrated.

To investigate the charges, which were causing bitterness and schism in some congregations, the Episcopal Church appointed a special committee of 21 prominent bishops, priests and laymen, headed by Bishop J. Brooke Mosley of Delaware.

The committee's report, formally submitted to the church's general convention in October, said that conferences with officials of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and the Federal Bureau of Investigation failed to unearth "any fact or record that would support charges" that the NCC "is a communist conspiracy or that it harbors communist sympathizers and allies."

Leaders of other denominations have also suggested that the NCC concentrate on speaking TO the churches rather than FOR them. This advice is apparently being heeded.

But the NCC is not retreating from the stand on segregation which is the principal concern of many of its critics. Last week, the general board met at Des Moines, Iowa, and instructed its religion and race commission to carry on the fight for racial justice in "ghetto areas" of northern cities, as well as in the South.

Marin Clerics Aid Goodwill Unit As Pulpit Volunteers

POPE'S FIRST 'AGNUS DEI'

Five Marin County clergymen have given of their time to minister to the needs of the Goodwill Industries workshop members in San Francisco during the past year—and more volunteers are sought in 1965.

Each Tuesday of the year, a different minister from a Bay Area church conducts a service at 8 a.m., then usually tours the six-story workshop, talking with the handicapped workers and answering their questions.

Goodwill, although now nondenominational, was founded in 1916 by the Board of Methodist Missions, and spiritual guidance plays an integral part in the institution's rehabilitation program of employing and training handicapped persons.

Volunteers during 1963 included Dev. Donald H. Baldwin of the First Methodist Church of San Rafael; Rev. L. H. Doyle, former pastor of Novato Community Methodist; Rev. James Claud Upshaw, pastor of Christ Presbyterian, Terra Linda; Rev. Wesley C. Baker, First Presbyterian, San Rafael, and Rev. Jack Biersdorf, Community Congregational, Fairfax.

Many of the Goodwill Industry's workers come from Marin County; they take pride in the fact that "my minister is conducting chapel service today," according to Dora Perry, press chairman for the institution.

Clergymen wishing to volunteer for Tuesday morning pulpit duties during 1965 may contact Rev. Arne O. Nilsen, at the Central Methodist Church, San Francisco.

Trinity Lutheran To Seat New Directors Tomorrow

The new board of directors at Trinity Lutheran Church will be formally installed at the 10:30 a.m. service tomorrow.

The board will direct the congregation's activities through 1965 in administrative matters and the areas of evangelism, education, and stewardship.

Members include Donald Marley, Richard Cater, Robert Bohlen, Andrew Dahl, Lawrence Hoyt, Gerhardt Jessen, William R. Welch all of San Rafael; Melvin Brockhoff of Corte Madera, and Roy Deffner of San Anselmo. Marley will preside over the board during the year.

Retiring officers include Paul Anderson, W. T. Berner, Bud Rockwell, and George Tyhurst of San Rafael; Dale Hitzeman of Novato, and Gordon Nelson of San Anselmo.

Trinity Lutheran also announced that a service will be held at 10:30 a.m. on New Year's Day.

Central American Educator To Talk At Loma Verde

Rev. Jason Cedarholm, principal of a religious school in El Salvador, Central America, will speak to Church school pupils and the adult congregation of the Loma Verde Community Church tomorrow.

He will address the children at 9:30 a.m. and the adults at the regular 11 a.m. service. The meeting is open to the public.

Rev. Cederholm, a member of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, is in charge of the "Colegio Bautista de Santa Ana," in Santa Ana, El Salvador. He and his wife, Helen, were appointed to the missionary field there in 1949, after he completed seminary training. During World War Two, he served as an Air Force navigator in the Pacific, Europe, Atlantic, South America and Africa.

Flying Missionary To Tell Of Philippines

Flying missionary Lee German will lecture and show films of his work among natives in the Philippine Islands, at tomorrow evening's meeting of the Marin Evangelical Free Church.

The public session will begin at 7 p.m. in the San Rafael Improvement Club, Fifth Avenue and H Street.

Church Spots Heard Over Radio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Many persons not in church Christmas Day last year might attend this year, thanks to radio spot announcements produced and created by that master satirist, Stan Freberg.

Freberg, who usually turns his commercial talents to ironic wit, does the church spots in a clever but serious vein.

Freberg was commissioned by United Presbyterian Church.

Freberg waived his considerable commercial fee, and even contributed $1,800 of his own money in producing these announcements, which the stations broadcast free of charge.

"Most public service spots come on at three in the morning, like Smokey the Bear," said Freberg.

"We wanted to get our message across when people are listening to radio.

"Radio stations are cooperating 100 per cent," Freberg said.

Freberg, son of a retired Baptist minister, used his father as technical consultant. The spots are heard in 35 key United States cities, Canada, Australia, Scotland and New Zealand.

Today is Saturday, Dec. 26, the 361st day of 1964 with five to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase; the morning stars are Venus and Mars; the evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1865, the first patent for a coffee percolator was awarded to James Nason of Franklin, Mass.

In 1917, the feleral government took over the operation of all U.S. railroads for the duration of World War I.

In 1941, for the first time, a British prime minister addressed a joint session of Congress. Winston Churchill discussed the war in Europe.

A thought for the day—Former Communist leader Joseph Stalin said: History shows that there are no invincible

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

'Baggers' Is Hit

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Evidently the British enjoy racy American movies, too, what with "The Carpetbaggers" breaking box-office records in London.

Cast Addition

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Joey Heatherton, who appeared in Broadway's "The Sound of Music," is being sought to star in "Belinda, Beware!"

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

Expert Guesses Right But Only If Necessary

Since an expert knows more about the hand and more about the players he guesses right about 20 per cent more often than the average player.

The expert's biggest advantage is that he doesn't try to guess when he has a sure thing.

West opened the jack of hearts, and declarer took the top hearts and gave up a heart. West returned a diamond, and declarer took three rounds of diamonds, cashed the ace of spades and gave up a spade.

KING WINS

East won with the king of spades and returned a low club through South's king-jack. South's contract now depended on whether he guessed the right play.

Anybody who is looking at all of the cards can see that the king of clubs is the winning play. If you weren't looking at all the cards, you might play the jack of clubs about three times out of ten.

There's nothing to be ashamed of if you guess right about seven times out of ten. The only thing to be ashamed of is guessing at all when you should make a sure thing out of this hand.

START SPADES

The correct play is to win the first trick in dummy with the king of hearts and return a low spade at once.

You intend to play the jack from your hand to lose the spade trick to West. East cannot really prevent you from doing so.

West leads another trump. You win, cash the ace of spades, run the diamonds, and put West in with a trump.

DUMMY RUFF

West has only spades and clubs. If he returns a spade, you ruff in dummy and discard the jack of clubs. If West returns a club, you have no problem.

Whenever possible force the safe opponent to lead a suit in which you have to guess. Keep the dangerous opponent out of the lead.

In this case, shut East out and force West to lead clubs for you.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ K 10 9 6 3
♥ Q
♦ 9 8 2
♣ A 9 6 5

What do you say?

Answer: Bid three spades.

The hand is just a trifle too strong for a shutout jump to four spades. If partner wants to bid a slam, you are not ashamed of your hand.

A Lot Of Television Football? Get Comfortable, It's Just Starting

Randol

Football may not be as fattening as food but this steady diet of videoed games is sure to produce something akin to stenographer's spread. The North-South game yesterday, the AFL championship contest today, and the NFL finals tomorrow are only the beginning.

Next week the bowl games come at us hot and heavy and it will be a good man who can say he saw 'em all. I believe the word is formidable in English, French and Spanish. As a member of the cult that believes the head can absorb only what the posterior can endure, I intend to be choosy.

IF THEY WERE all to be as exciting as yesterday's Shrine game I'm afraid I'd be hooked for good. That was a cliff-hanging dandy, a real talent showcase for some of next year's pro rookies.

Of particular interest to 49er fans was the play of Ken Willard of North Carolina, our number one draft choice. The man is big and rugged, and he blocks well both on running plays and protecting the passer. Commendable traits that will be welcome next year.

THE NEW YORK Giants got a good one in Tucker Frederickson of Auburn. I wonder if the 49ers would have taken him in place of Willard had they had first picks. Another goodie has to be sprinter Bob Hayes, who goes to the Dallas Cowboys. The Texans already have speed and with this Olympic champ added to the roster they will give some teams fits.

The upcoming Shrine game at Kezar Stadium will give us a chance to look over three more Niner draft choices. Already these boys have received high praise from coaches, and I'm sure they all realize that jobs with the 49ers are wide open for the taking. Let's play this is a bumper crop.

VIEWERS SAW summer weather and summer rain for the all-star contest. The pro playoffs today and tomorrow may be spoiled artistically by weather that would make an Alaskan well digger uncomfortable. It is a shame that these games are so often played in cold rain, ice or snow. I firmly believe these games will move to California and Florida within two years.

More fearless prognostications? Today it was Buffalo for the AFL title. Tomorrow I like the Baltimore Colts in a squeaker if the field is wet or frozen. If dry, Johnny Unitas and Company should walk away from the Cleveland Browns. But don't bet on it.

Colts, Browns Meet For NFL Title

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Brown, the Cleveland Browns' fabulous fullback, never has seemed more primed for a top effort than he is for tomorrow's championship game against the Baltimore Colts.

The 228-pound line-wrecker, who won the National Football League rushing title this season for the seventh time, went over the 100-yard mark rushing in four of his last seven games. And he piled up 99 yards in the finale against the New York Giants.

"I'm pleased that I was able to finish strongly this year," said the eight-year veteran who finished with 1,446 yards, third best in his career. "As far as ground gaining and statistics go, I've had better seasons. We won this year and that's the only thing that really counts."

Brown, plagued part of the season with an injured toe and hand, scored nine touchdowns for a career total of 105, tying him with Green Bay's Don Hutson for the all-time NFL record.

In all, he went over the 100-yard mark six times this year, his best effort coming in Dallas where he gained 188 yards.

Brown's late season brilliance, plus the fact he never has been on a championship team, figure to make him extra dangerous against the Colts.

In his only championship appearance, Brown was a rookie when the Detroit Lions humbled the Browns, 59-14, in 1957.

Baltimore Coach Don Shula knows what a problem he has in trying to stop Brown.

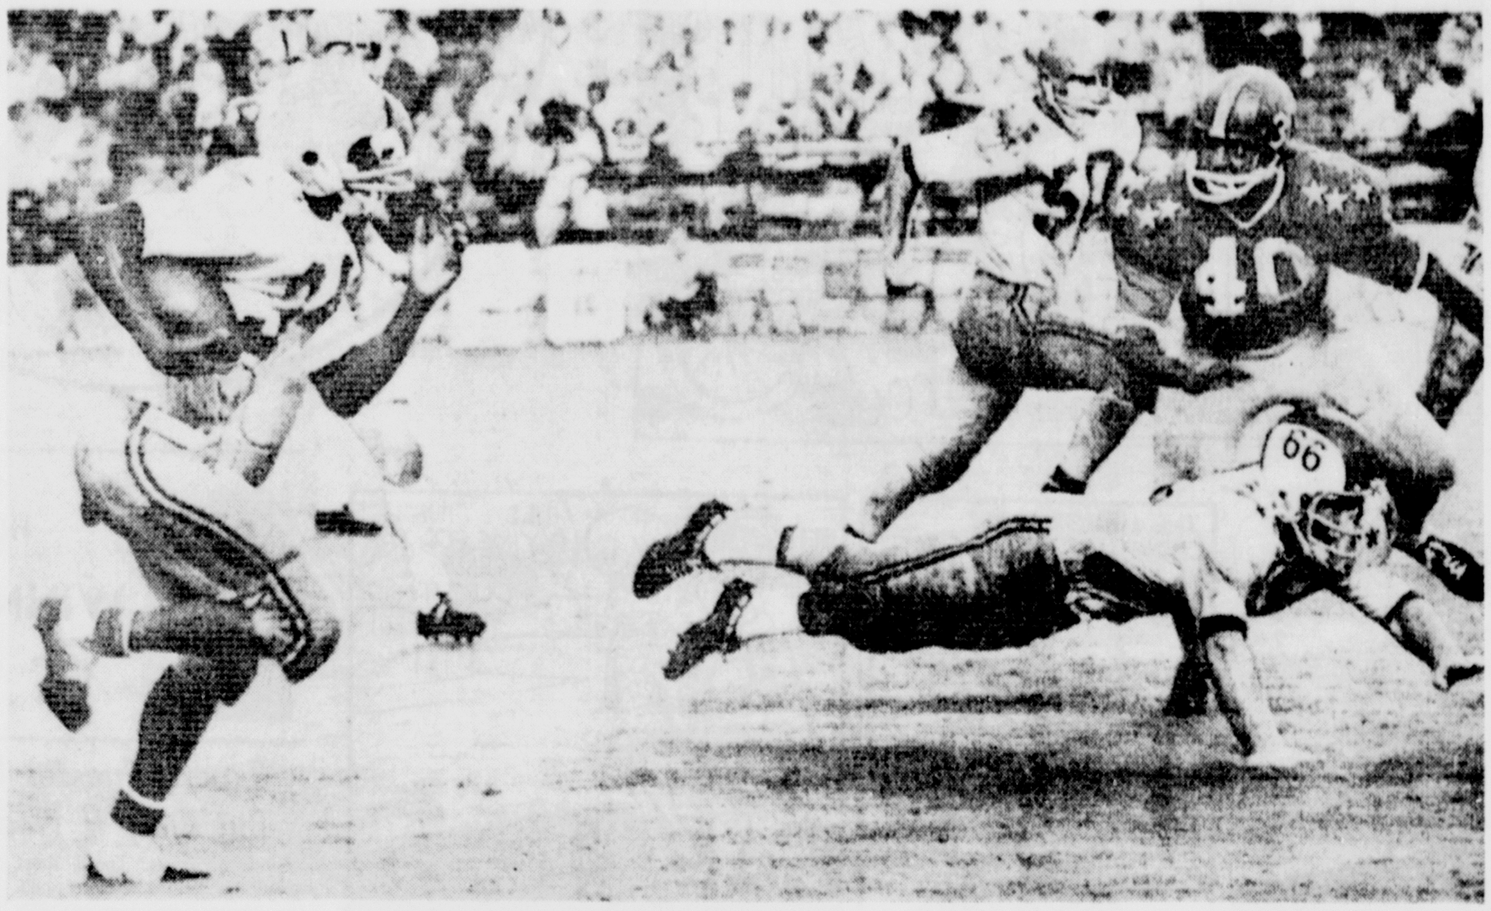
"He's probably the best offensive player in pro football and can bust a game wide open," said Shula. "We can't leave it up to one-man coverage because he'll break away from one tackler."

Says Colt linebacker Don Shinnick: "We've got to surround him."

The Browns scheduled a half-hour workout today but the Colts, who arrived last night, planned to skip any workout today. They were to look over Municipal Stadium's field and possibly hold strategy sessions.

Blanton Collier, the Browns' coach, and Shula both had news conferences scheduled following lunch.

The field is covered and in good shape. Today's weather forecast calls for cloudy skies with the temperature in the mid-30s and a possibility of rain, but no snow.



HAYES IS OFF—Bobby Hayes of Florida A&M gets a key block as he races for the end zone to score a South touchdown on a 39-yard gallop in the fourth period of yesterday's North-South Shrine game in Miami, Fla. Hayes was named the most valuable player for the South, and quarterback Jack Huarte won the honor for the winning North team. (AP Wirephoto)

North All-Stars Thump South 37-30 In Thrilling Shrine Tilt

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — John Huarte won the battle of the quarterbacks handily, but his North team had to go through a hair-raising fight before it finally conquered the South in the most exciting game of the Shrine Christmas football series, 37-30.

Only five seconds were left when Huarte, Notre Dame's Heisman Trophy winning quarterback, whipped a five-yard clutch pass to his teammate, Jack Snow, to break a 30-30 deadlock the South had forged with a gallant comeback just two minutes earlier.

This and a magnificent game-long performance won Huarte the vote as the outstanding North player. And he clearly outshone the two South quarterbacks, Navy's Roger Staubach and Tulsa's aerial record-breaker, Jerry Rhome.

In the winning drive, the Huarte-Snow combination, so effective for Notre Dame all season, clicked three times. The North had the ball on the South five when Snow grabbed the last one for the TD.

"The ball was tipped just a litte, and Jack had abandoned our pattern, but I knew he'd got it," said Huarte.

"They came up on me," said Snow. "I just curled back and hoped he'd find me."

The South had rallied from a 30-6 deficit to tie the score at 30-30. They were helped by the special rule for the game which permits the trailing team to have the option of receiving or kicking after a touchdown.

North Coach Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame said he thought the rule "terrific for the All-Star game. It makes for an interesting game although it's tougher on the players."

Huarte, who emerged from obscurity to lead Notre Dame back to the football heights this season, completed 18 of 28 passes for 208 yards and two touchdowns, topping the combined throwing yardage of Staubach and Rhome.

On the South side, Bob Hayes, Florida A&M's Olympic sprinter, stole the show from the quarterbacks to be voted the outstanding player on his team. Hayes operated as a split end.

After a mild first half that ended with the North in front 7-6, the Yankees exploded for 23 points in the third period on a 25-yard sprint by Penn State's Tom Urbanik, a 20-yard pass from Huarte to Army's Carl Stichweh and a 44-yard runback by Rudy Kuechenberg of Indiana with a pass stolen from Rhome.

It looked utterly hopeless when the South trailed 30-6, but the Rebels picked themselves up off the rain-swept field and launched a 24-points bombardment of their own to even the count.

It was Staubach, the 1963 Heisman winner, who brought the South alive with a great running exhibition in a 62-yard scoring surge. Staubach rope-danced 34 yards to the one to set up a touchdown by Auburn's Tucker Frederickson, the man the South depended on all day for its clutch yardage.

Then Hayes, pushing slower blockers out of his way, blazed 39 yards for a touchdown on a reverse. Finally, Staubach shot across from the one with 2:08 left and passed to Baylor's Ken Hodge for two points that squared it up.

It was the North's first victory since 1960. The South leads 10-6 and one tie.

The game ushered in a long, important weekend for football—both pro and college variety—and served as a prelude to next weekend's major bowl struggles.

Scheduled today were the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas between Georgia and Texas Tech, each with a 6-3-1 record, and the Blue-Gray game in Montgomery, Ala., between two squads of college all stars.

The wind-up comes next weekend with the Rose, Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowls on New Year's Day, and the Gator Bowl and East-West Shrine Bowl on Jan. 2. All are scheduled for national television.

National champion Alabama, 10-0, goes against Texas, 9-1 in the Orange Bowl at Miami; Michigan, 8-1, plays Oregon State, 8-2, in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena; Arkansas, 10-0, takes on Nebraska, 9-1, in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas and Syracuse, 7-3, plays LSU, 7-2-1, in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

Florida State, 8-1-1, takes on Oklahoma, 6-3-1, in Jacksonville's Gator Bowl and the East-West All Stars are matched in the Shrine Bowl game at San Francisco on Jan. 2.

TENNIS RANKINGS

Ralston Replaces Chuck McKinley

NEW YORK (AP) — Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., has replaced Chuck McKinley at the head of the United States Lawn Tennis Assn. men's rankings.

McKinley, from St. Ann. Mo., and San Antonio, Tex., dropped to second in the ratings released yesterday. Ralston and McKinley, members of the U. S. team that lost the Davis Cup to Australia last September, were ranked No. 1 in men's doubles.

The women's division also had a new leader, Nancy Richey of Dallas. She replaced Darlene Hard, who turned professional. Miss Richey, a loser in the semi-finals of the national championships at Forest Hills, N.Y., was third this past year.

Ranked second was Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., who also was listed first with Mrs. Karen Hantze Susman of San Antonio in women's doubles.

Dry Field On Tap For Title Game

CLEVELAND (AP) — "Weather clear, track fast."

That could be the sign posted outside mammoth Cleveland Stadium tomorrow for the National Football League's richest title game, and both the Cleveland Browns and the Baltimore Colts are delighted.

Firm turf will help the Browns, both because of the crunching running of their great fullback, Jimmy Brown, and in the pass receiving patterns of rookie end Paul Warfield.

The Colts are delighted, too, since their ace quarterback, Johnny Unitas, will be able to throw the ball. In Unitas the Colts have the generally accepted No. 1 quarterback in the business, and they can run, too.

Kickoff is at 10:30 a.m., PST.

'I Knew He'd Get It,' Says Huarte

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — John Huarte and Jack Snow had run the football play many times at Notre Dame. Snow would fake inside and go out. If he was covered, he'd curl back — the sign for Huarte to throw.

This same combination worked in the final seconds of the North-South game yesterday as Snow's five-yard grab of Huarte's final pass gave the North a 37-30 victory.

"The ball was tipped just a little, and Jack had abandoned the pattern," said Heisman Trophy winner Huarte of those last five seconds. "But I knew he'd get it."

Huarte hit Snow for 12 yards and seven yards, to the South five. The payoff pitch came as Snow curled back from the sidelines. "They came up on me. I just curled back and hoped he'd find me," said Snow.

The North victory squelched a South comeback, helped by a special rule which gives the trailing team the option to receive a kickoff after its touchdown.

North Coach Ara Parseghian agreed the rule was tough on the defense but added, "I think it's terrific for an all-star game. It makes for an interesting game although it's tougher on the players."

Army's John Seymour, defensive back, said, "This is no good." Seymour's task was covering Florida A&M sprinter Bob Hayes, who hauled in seven passes for 84 yards.

"We had to double cover him most of the time. And you've got to give him four or five yards or else he'll kill you with those stop and go moves. He's tough to cover on short plays," Seymour said.

Hayes, meanwhile, sat in the South dressing room holding the game football "because I had it when the game ended."

"Hayes is our last chance," said Florida Coach Ray Graves in the final minutes. Navy's Wayne Hardin, co-coach of the South with Graves, told Hayes: "You gotta get the ball and go all the way on the kickoff." Hayes said he tried, but enroute he ran into Army's Jack Johnson.

Hayes was named the South's most valuable player and Huarte was named valuable player for the North.

A forgotten quarterback was Tulsa's national passing record holder Jerry Rhome. He got in one play in the second half.

The North went ahead 22-6 and Rhome aimed a pass at Hayes. Someone deflected the ball and Indiana's Rudy Kuechenberg stole it and ran 45 yards for the North's fourth touchdown.

"That was a bad break," said Rhome, "but that's the way football is. I'm not complaining. This team showed a lot of courage in coming back the way it did."

Coast Basketball Resumes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Santa Claus presumably filled all the baskets on Christmas, but the holiday is over now and action resumes on Pacific Coast basketball courts.

The Far West Classic begins in the Pacific Northwest and the West Coast Athletic Conference starts a five-day tournament at San Jose. The latter event involves all eight members of the conference. The Far West Classic will occupy Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State.

California, meantime, will meet Wyoming tonight and Stanford will be tested by Tulane.

UCLA's 84-75 victory over Southern California Tuesday night kept the Bruins far out front in the Pacific Athletic Conference standings. The mighty Bruins have a 6-1 record in this hiatus before conference games begin.

The Stanford Indians were impressive also Tuesday night in their 74-56 win over Oregon. But they're still in second place with a 3-2 record in the standings.

On Wednesday night, Oregon State visited Cincinnati and left with a 71-56 loss. A little later in the evening, due to the time zone differential, senior forward Allen Young's 29 points helped Southern California defeat Santa Clara 69-66. The game was played in the Loyola gym.

Southern Cal, UCLA and Washington all will be engaged in the Los Angeles basketball classic, starting Monday.

Powerful Long Beach State was victorious in the Kris Kringle Klassic, hosted by Cal State at Fullerton. The Long Beach team whipped San Fernando Valley State 103-92 in the championship game Wednesday night.

Cage Star Bradley To Study Law

CRYTAL CITY, Mo. (AP) — All-America Bill Bradley has forsaken the court for the courtroom, much to the dismay of the National Basketball Assn.

The 6-foot-5 Princeton senior has chosen to enter law school after completing two years at Oxford University in England on a Rhodes scholarship.

His decision came just before he left for school from his Crystal City home, where he had been spending the holidays.

The news undoubtedly is a crushing blow to the New York Knickerbockers of the NBA, who were expected to snatch Bradley as a territorial choice in the 1965 draft.

Instead, American basketball fans probably will be seeing the last of Bradley on the basketball court when he ends his collegiate career in the spring. He had led Princeton to Ivy League titles in his sophomore and junior years, and the Tigers are eying a third straight. With Bradley averaging more than 27 points a game.

Bradley, who helped the United States win the Olympic basketball title this fall, follows in the footsteps of two other former American sports greats — Byron (Whizzer) White and Pete Dawkins.

White starred in football for the University of Colorado, went on to Oxford and now is a U. S. Supreme Court justice.

Dawkins, former Army football great who went on to Oxford and won high praise as a rugby player, now is serving overseas in the Army.

Roger Staubach Reports To East's Shrine Camp

In nearby Palo Alto, the aerial - minded West squad planned a single workout after a strenuous session Christmas Day.

Elliott nearly had a nervous breakdown yesterday when Staubach completed a 35-yard run by collapsing on the one-yard line in Miami's North - South Shrine game.

In fact, Elliott placed a transcontinental phone call to the Orange Bowl to check on Staubach's condition — which was A-OK. He was just pooped.

Staubach must beat out Pitt's Fred Mazurek, a quarterback more noted for his running, although he's completed some impressive passes in practice to Jim Jones of Wisconsin and Jim Whelan of Boston College.

"We've installed only 12 to 14 plays so far and Staubach should assimilate those in a hurry," said Elliott, "and get right in on what new ones we'll put in between now and next Saturday."

Meanwhile, over in the West camp, the passing game is clicking with California's Craig Morton and Oregon's Bob Berry doing the tossing.

Ends and flankers Larry Elkins of Baylor, Fred Hill of Southern California and Jack Schraub of California have done most of the catching with surprise assistance from halfback Gale Sayers of Kansas.

"He's really quick," commented West Coach John McKay of USC. "If he gets any daylight on those flat passes, he's gone."

Sayers and Clarence Williams of Washington State are vying for a running back spot, although both can catch. In addition, Williams also can pass and is noted for his pass-defending abilities.

Lucas Shines As Royals Tip Hawks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jerry Lucas of the Cincinnati Royals is in the top ten in four categories in the National Basketball Association. He's third in rebounds, fourth in foul shooting, fifth in field goal percentage and seventh in scoring.

The former All-America at Ohio State demonstrated last night why he is considered one of the top professional players. He scored five points in an extra period to give the Royals a 130-125 victory over the St. Louis Hawks before a Christmas night turnout of 6,411 at Cincinnati. Over-all Lucas scored 29 points and grabbed 28 rebounds.

The Boston Celtics beat the Detroit Pistons 118-106 and the Baltimore Bullets defeated the New York Knicks 114-108 in a doubleheader that drew 17,012 to New York's Madison Square Garden. No other NBA games were scheduled.

Oscar Robertson scored 38 points and Lennie Wilkens 36 for the Hawks in the see-saw Cincinnati-St. Louis struggle. The Royals led at one point 75-65 then St. Louis 93-91 before the regulation game ended 118-118 and set the stage for Lucas in the overtime.

Down 18 points in the second period Detroit rallied to tie Boston at 53-53 before Sam Jones paced the Celtics to their fifth straight over the Pistons with 34 points, including two baskets that put Boston ahead at the half 58-54. Big Bill Russell was on the bench when Detroit tied the score.

New York similarly cut a 16-point deficit to three points at 105-102 with less than two minutes to play, but Baltimore was equal to the challenge. Don Ohl, who had been resting a bruised wrist, came back into the game and scored five points. Walt Bellamy of the Bullets was high for the game with 31 points.

Nebraska, Arkansas Tune For Bowl Game

DALLAS (AP) — Nebraska's football team practices at the site of the Cotton Bowl today preparing for "the strongest team we will play." The quotes are from Coach Bob Devaney.

The Cornhuskers meet Arkansas next Friday and Devaney said the Razorbacks were "the best balanced offensively and defensively and running and passing" that Nebraska would face.

But he admitted Nebraska was pretty well balanced, too, since it was second in the nation in defense and led the Big Eight Conference in offense.

But he would not predict which would win and had no comment on Arkansas being a six-point favorite.

"Arkansas won more games and should be favored, I presume," he said, "but I don't pay any attention to point spreads. They mean nothing. It's on the field where football games are decided."

Arkansas, which moves into Houston tomorrow to start its final training schedule, had a 10-0 record this season. Nebraska was 9-1.

Devaney wouldn't hazard a guess as to the score and had no prediction on whether there might be little scoring or a lot of it.

"You know," he grinned, "I once predicted that a bowl game we were playing in would be decided on a break in a tight scoring struggle. You know what happened? We beat Miami 36-34. Since then, I have shied away from making any kind of prediction. I just am not smart enough, I guess."

Nebraska's squad of 51 players flew in yesterday from Brownsville, Tex., where it got in four days of what Devaney described as satisfactory practice, even having a tough scrimmage session — the first since the opening week of practice in the fall.

He found the squad in passable condition and figured it would reach its peak by the time of the game.

Devaney declared that a study of films and scout reports showed him Arkansas compared with Missouri defensively and Oklahoma State offensively, although he added, "They are not strong resemblances." Nebraska beat Missouri 9-0 and Oklahoma State 27-14.

Devaney said he would have only afternoon workouts here except for one morning when "we'll go to a dude ranch and get away from everybody."

Mill Valley Netter In Top Ten

NEW YORK (AP) — Gardner Mulloy of Miami, winner of the National Senior tennis title for six straight years, and Mrs. Dorothy Bundy Cheney of Santa Monica, Calif., topped the United States Lawn Tennis Associated States Lawn Tennis Assn's. ratings announced yesterday.

Robert Galloway of La Jolla, Calif., the beaten finalist, was ranked second to Mulloy and Julius Heldman of New York was ranked third.

Robert Hill of Mill Valley was ranked number 8.

Among the women, Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss of Los Angeles, was ranked second followed by Katherine Hubbell, Conway, N.H., and Mrs. Baba Lewis of Newtonville, Mass. Mrs. Lewis was beaten in the national finals by Mrs. Cheney.

The rankings:

Senior Men's Singles

1, Gardner Mulloy, Miami. 2, Robert Galloway, La Jolla, Calif. 3, Julius Heldman, New York. 4, Norman Brooks, San Mateo, Calif. 5, George R. MacCall, Los Angeles. 6, William Smith, San Pedro, Calif. 7, William B. Millikan, West Point, N.Y. 8, Robert Hill, Mill Valley, Calif. 9, Chauncey Depew Steele Jr., Cambridge, Mass. 10, Dr. Robert A. Pass Receivers For West Team Please McKay

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Coach John McKay of Southern California expressed pleasure this Christmas Day over the performance of his pass receivers on the West squad in preparation for the annual Shrine East-West game Jan. 2 in San Francisco.

The pass catchers who stood out in the Christmas morning drill were Larry Elkins of Baylor, Fred Hill of Southern California, and Jack Schraub of University of California.

Warriors Meet Lakers Tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers, still plowing along without the aid of ailing Rudy LaRusso and Jerry West but getting along nicely with the aid of Elgin Baylor, meet the San Francisco Warriors tonight on the Sports Arena hardwood.

The Warriors now repose at the bottom of the Western Division of the National Basketball Assn., while the Lakers sit at the top.

Baylor, occasionally slowed by chronic knee troubles with calcium deposits, has not been noticeably slowed in the past week. Last Monday he scored 40 points to help the Lakers beat the New York Knickerbockers, and Wednesday he scored 43 to help them submerge Philadelphia.

Alabama Players Take A Break

Coach Paul Bryant and about 75 players, coaches and wives, arrived here late Friday "a day earlier than we did on our other bowl trips." Bryant said, "I want the boys to get a good night's rest and be ready for practice Monday."

He said Monday's practice would be mostly picture taking and limbering up. The Texas team will arrive in Miami Dec. 28 with their first workout scheduled Dec. 29.

Former Seal Signs Canadian Contract

MONTREAL (AP) — The Verdun Pirates of Quebec's Provincial Senior Hockey League announced yesterday they have signed center Cliff Pennington, 24-year-old former member of the Boston Bruins organization.

Pennington, now a teacher in Montreal, played last season for the Quebec Aces in the American League and San Francisco in the Western circuit. He played two seasons for the National Hockey League Bruins.

WARRIORS AUCTION BLOCK

Wilt Definitely For Sale

By HAL WOOD
UPI Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain, the highest scoring star in the history of the National Basketball Assn., definitely is up for sale by the San Francisco Warriors.

But the word in NBA circles is that all the potential customers don't want Wilt—they want his understudy, Nate Thurmond.

It makes sense: Thurmond is younger and has just about as much potential. Besides, his salary of approximately $10,000 a year looks like small potatoes compared with the estimated $70,000 that Wilt the Stilt demands.

Franklin Nieuli, president of the Warriors, is hiding out from callers trying to evaluate the many offers he has had.

"Visiting teams have noted that the Warriors aren't winning and they aren't attracting many fans," says a source close to the team's front office. "As a result they have offered to help out — in a close fisted sort of way, that is."

Some of the offers reputedly have been for cash; some have been for players and cash; and some have been for players.

Some of the cash offers are believed to have been higher for Nate than they have for Wilt—because of the salary, of course.

The Los Angeles Lakers are the highest bidders. But there is some belief in Warrior circles that Mieuli would rather have Wilt playing in the eastern division. Just as the National Leaguers will do big business with the American baseball league — but won't let a good man get away in their own league.

The $500,000 talk out of Los Angeles for Wilt is someone's pipedream. Unless you want to consider Elgin Baylor and Jerry West worth $200,000 each, with $100,000 cash thrown in.

The story is that the Lakers won't get Chamberlain — or Thurmond—because they don't need him. What would the likes of West or Baylor be doing feeding Chamberlain? They can shoot just as well from the outside as Wilt can in close.

The belief is that the Philadelphia 76ers — where Wilt is a big hero — might put out the most for the big center. And the Detroit Pistons might part with such a fine outside shooter as Terry Dischinger, who has .512 shooting average, compared with Wilt's .489. And Wilt's shots mostly are in close.

Jerry Lucas of Cincinnati might be a possibility, but what could the Royals do with Chamberlain and Oscar Robertson?

And that brings us down to the Boston Celtics. Wilt Chamberlain for Bill Russell, anyone?

Sonny Liston Again Goes Behind Bars

DENVER (AP) — Sonny Liston's arrest and release yesterday afternoon was punctuated throughout by vocal outbursts and forceful resistance on the part of the ex-champion.

The trouble started when three Denver policemen pulled Liston and a companion over to the curb and ordered the pair out of their car.

Liston at first refused. After a brief argument, he was led from the car by the arm.

"Then," said patrolman Edward E. Nelson, "he refused to show us his driver's license and said we would 'have to take it off him to get it.'

"We kept asking him not to make us fight him," Nelson said. "We told him we weren't pros and tried to reason with him to get him to cooperate with us."

Liston's response at this point was to shove both officers away from him and refuse to get into the patrol car.

"That's when we called for help," Nelson said. Eight policemen answered the call for assistance.

After a shoving match — in which, police said, no blows were struck — the ex-champion finally agreed to surrender his driver's license and be taken in a police van to headquarters.

Later, at the jail, several deputies had to wrestle Liston into a cell after a struggle to fingerprint him.

Jail guards said that Liston "went to sleep" shortly afterwards.

Harlem Clowns To Appear In Marin Jan. 7

The Harlem Clowns will bring their fun-filled version of basketball to the College of Marin gym Jan. 7.

Providing the opposition will be the college's Block M Club. The Clowns don't try to run up a big score, but instead provide audiences with comedy. But if the opposition gets too close, they can open up and push through the points.

Women Golfers Clinic Slated

Professionals Kathy Whitworth and Carol Mann will conduct a golf clinic at the Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael on Friday, Jan. 8, at 12:15 p.m.

The clinic will deal with the proper way to hit various shots, fundamentals of the golf swing, and putting techniques. Following the one-hour clinic, the two will compete in a nine-hole exhibition match.

Both events are open to the public without charge.

Doll House Furniture Hand Made

The miniature size students in the kindergarten of St. Stephen's Parish Day School in Belvedere have an even smaller doll house to play with, each piece of tiny furniture made by hand by their teacher.

Mrs. Annelies Pesl is putting to use her Swiss kindergarten teacher training, which leans heavily to handicrafts. She has helped her young pupils cut and piece together wood to make their own marimbas.

The intricate miniature furniture for the doll house is made with a fine European coping saw and patience. A disk a few inches high has a top which opens, and drawers which pull out. The doll house she made has curtains at the windows, pictures on the walls, antimacassars on the chairs.

Mrs. Pesl says she would like to "do something for education" in combining Swiss emphasis on hand work to develop muscle cordination and American ideas on mental exercise for kindergarten age children.

Mrs. Pesl came to Milwaukee to learn English, where she met her future husband, American James Pesl, who is a painter. In his spare time he makes full size furniture, such as perfectly worked table and desk for their apartment at 435 Palm Avenue, Kentfield.

Two Men From Marin Graduated In Oregon

Two Marin County residents were among graduates at convocation exercises at the University of Oregon, Eugene, recently.

John N. Mullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Mullen of 224 El Prado Avenue, San Rafael, received a bachelor of arts degree. Eric R. Lindner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar T. Lindner of Walters Road, Ross, graduated with a bachelor of business administration degree.

Talk By USF Aide

Dr. Augustine P. Donoghue, admissions director for University of San Francisco, will visit San Rafael Military Academy Jan. 11 and meet at 9 a.m. with students to discuss the university's admission requirements and curriculm.

Johnson Back On Job After Christmas Day

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — President Johnson shoved the Christmas clutter from his ranch house desk today to get back to work on the federal budget.

The Texas White House said Johnson planned to spend the day going over figures for the next fiscal year.

He was expected to confer with administration officials by telephone, but had no plans to summon any of them to the LBJ ranch this weekend.

Johnson has been whittling down the spending requests, which total $108.5 billion. He hopes to send Congress a budget of $100 billion or less but had not tipped his hand on whether he will. Disclosures of budget cuts reported by several cabinet officers after conferences at the ranch however, brightened the chances a little.

Christmas gifts to the First Family fell in the class of "something old and something new" with most of the stress on sentiment and family ties.

The President and Mrs. Johnson received a batch of letters, dating back to 1907, written by his parents, a white album of poems by Luci, and a century old sampler inscribed "God Bless Our Home" from their daughter Lynda, 20.

Johnson gave gold pins to his wife and their two daughters. Mrs. Johnson presented her husband a framed motto signed by Abraham Lincoln, in which the Civil War president says that if he were to "try to answer all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any business."

The First Lady received another gift she wanted for the restoration of Johnson's boyhood home here — two lightning rods from her Secret Service agent, Jerry Kivett. The agent sent for the rods to be removed from his family homestead in South Carolina, since his parents no longer live there. "I like them all the more because they came from his house," Mrs. Johnson said.

She also classed among her prize gifts a water coloring of the post office at Hye, near the LBJ ranch and a pen sketch of the President's boyhood home.

The hospitable Johnsons shared their Christmas with others. They invited the White House press corps to the ranch for eggnog and coffee and some 20 relatives to a Christmas dinner party yesterday evening.

New Tiburon Aide Named

Mrs. Marrian P. Comstock, 12 Estrada Lane, Corte Madera, will take over Jan. 4 as administrative assistant to the City of Tiburon.

She will replace Mrs. Ann Bayless, who has held the post since the city's incorporation in June. Mrs. Bayless plans to continue her studies at University of California in Berkeley, write, and spend more time with her family, she said.

Mrs. Comstock helped State Assemblyman William T. Bagley's last campaign. She attended the State University of Iowa and University of , Minnesota served as a yeoman in the Navy in 1944-47, and has lately been employed by various firms as a secretary.

On Commission

Walter Mikel was seated Wednesday on the Stinson Beach Fire Protection District commission, to succeed Henry Lacaze, who resigned for business reasons. Mikel, an employee with Marin County Department of Public Works, owns with his wife, the Parkside, a Stinson Beach hamburger stand.

Registration For 'Tiny Tots' Set

Registration for the first 1965 session of the San Rafael Recreation Department's "Tiny Tots" program will be held Tuesday from 9 a.m. to noon at the city recreation center at 37 Union Street.

The six-week session for children from three to five years old who are not in kindergarten will begin Jan. 5. The fee is $5.

Rep. Vinson Ends Career In House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — after more than 50 years in Congress, Uncle Carl Vinson has formally closed his government career by slipping out of the nation's capital on Christmas Day while no one was looking.

Vinson, dean of the House of Representatives and probably its most powerful and respected single member, boarded a train at the nearly deserted Union Station yesterday for the trip back to Milledgeville, Ga., and his 600 acre farm.

No one except a couple of newsmen was on hand for the final leave taking. The 81-year-old Vinson refused help with his two suitcases and wouldn't even let anyone get a redcap.

He clearly did not want any tear-filled farewells and had let word pass around on Capitol Hill that he planned to stay until the opening of the 88th Congress Jan. 4.

"But there wasn't going to be anything much doing next week so I decided I might as well get on back to the farm," Uncle Carl explained.

Vinson's official record as a Democratic House member from Georgia is 50 years and one month, a mark that will not be matched any time soon and may never be equalled. He announced on his 80th birthday that he would not seek another term.

As chairman of the powerful House Armed Services Committee and the Naval Affairs Committee which preceded it for 30 years, no man had more to do with this country's defenses or played a bigger role in building them.

Novatans Get Award For Yule Decor

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph de Maestri of 50 Fairway Drive, Novato, were awarded a prize for the most extensive decorated home in Marin Country Club Estates in a contest sponsored by the Marin Country Club Estates Homeowners Assn.

The most original home decoration was that of George W. Sommers Jr. of 3 Capilano Drive. Honorable mention was given the Charles Kuhns, Oliver Merwins and Nathan Udells homes.

Judges were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flachs, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Geddes and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lindauer, all members of the homeowners association.

Nicasio Man Hurt In Auto Accident

Carl A. Cole, 36, of the Firhaven Ranch, Nicasio, was treated for a slight neck injury and a bruised forehead at Marin General Hospital Wednesday after a head-on auto collision at 2:15 p.m. on Lucas Valley Road about two miles east of Nicasio.

Growers Might Lose Some Crops

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Southern California citrus and lettuce growers may begin to lose crops because of labor shortage within the first week of the new year, a growers' organization official forecasted today.

About 10,000 Mexican workers are due to leave their jobs next week, as public law 78, which authorized the bracero importation, expires on Dec. 31.

Under the order recently handed down by Willard Wirtz, secretary of labor, all efforts to recruit domestic workers must be exhausted before any importing of workers under PL-414 can be commenced. Even then, farmers must meet strict conditions, including furnishing family housing for domestic workers, a guarantee of pay for at least three-fourths of the work period for which the person is hired, and payment of a $1.25 minimum wage.

E. J. Raffetto, president of the California-Arizona farm labor association, said the citrus industry has ordered 4,000 workers and the lettuce growers were expected to place orders this week. While citrus may be left on the trees a few days longer, there is no leeway with lettuce, Raffetto said, and crop losses will begin as soon as labor is not available.

In Sacramento, Don Larin, farm placement officer for the Department of Employment, said four recruiting teams are at work seeking domestic workers. Asked how soon results of this recruitment might be known, Larin said the department would "begin to evaluate" reports of the recruiters some time next week, or only a day or so before the Mexicans must leave the fields.

Tea constumption in the United States in 1963 was 7.7 gallons per person.

Mrs. Kennedy Won't Attend Inauguration

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy will not attend President Lyndon B. Johnson's inauguration.

The former first lady has declined invitations from both the President and Mrs. Johnson, and Dale Miller, chairman of the inaugural committee. She was the first outside of the president's immediate family to receive an invitation from them, and sent personal regrets.

The presidential pavilion in front of the White House, from which the president, cabinet and other VIPs will witness the three-hour inaugural parade, is being equipped with wall-to-wall carpeting, bullet-proof glass, and infra-red heating units.

This is the first time expensive bullet-proof glass is being used for this pavilion. Cost of the structure and directly opposite press and TV stands is $246,000, including removal.

Varda Files For Divorce

Through three matrimonial years ending in 1958 71-year-old Sausalito artist Jean Varda was unable to persuade his 34-year-old Greek wife to consummate their marriage, he declared in an action for divorce or annulment filed in Marin County Superior Court.

The widely known Varda, dean of Marin County artists, married the former Chryssa Varea in Paris Sept. 1, 1955, and separated three years later. Mrs. Varda is now in New York.

Varda claims in his suit that fraudulence is a factor, presumably making basis for annulment rather than divorce. He says Mrs. Varda falsely represented willingness to consummate the marriage.

Driver Fined

George Gilman Pearce, 65, of 375 Vista Grande, Greenbrae, was ordered Wednesday to pay a $166 fine and surrender his driver's license for 90 days in Marin Superior Court for drunken driving. He was arrested Dec. 13.

U.S. Civil Rights Agency Debated By Administration

By ERWIN KNOLL
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Johnson administration officials are debating a proposal to set up a new federal agency to coordinate all of the government's civil rights enforcement efforts.

Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey, who will have overall charge of federal civil rights programs in the new administration, has discussed the possibility of a civil rights agency with a number of government officials.

Burke Marshall, who has resigned as assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's civil rights division, is considered a likely candidate to head the civil rights agency if it is established.

A White House source said that creation of such an agency would be "a proper subject for discussion between the president and the vice president."

Humphrey is to report to Johnson by Friday on a study he is making of the government's civil rights activities.

A Humphrey aide said that the study has disclosed "an awful lot of overlap" in the administration of civil rights programs now under the jurisdiction of half a dozen federal departments and agencies.

Among the activities which might be merged into a new federal agency are those now carried on by the Civil Rights Commission, the civil rights division of the Justice Department, the community relations service of the Commerce Department, the president's committee on equal opportunity in housing and the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission created as an independent agency by the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The chief obstacle to the plan for a separate civil rights agency is the likelihood that it would trigger another major North-South battle in Congress. Administration sources note that it would take either an act of Congress or a presidential reorganization order to set up the agency. In the latter case, Congress would have the right to veto the plan.

One of the theories about origin of St. Valentine's Day is that it is the day birds mate.

'64 Big Year For Airplanes

By WILLIAM E. HOWARD
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—This closing year is going down as a vintage year for the introduction of exotic aircraft.

Never before, in a 12-month period, have so many advanced planes been unwrapped or taken to the skies.

Perhaps the most dramatic arrival of the year was the A-11 developed in deep secrecy and unveiled by President Lyndon B. Johnson on Feb. 29 as the world's first 2,000 MPH fighter plane and reconnaissance jet The recon version—labeled the SR-71—is scheduled for deployment with the Strategic Air Command starting in March, 1965.

A question mark remains over production of the fighter version of the sleek, twin jet, designated the YF-12A. Armed with a new long-range missile, the YF-12A is supposed to be turned over to the Air Defense Command as a new guardian against Soviet bombers.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara scored a triumph with the on-schedule first flight of the 1,650 MPH TFX (renamed the F-111)-the controversial fighter he forced on both the Air Force and the Navy.

A triumph of another sort was racked up by the builders of the XB-70, the highly controversial 2,000 MHP bomber that McNamara cut back to a strictly experimental project. The giant craft, seven years in the making, finally lifted its python-shaped nose off a California runway in September—looking like it would never fly. But it did, and after a few minor mishaps it is now performing as promised.

Not as highly publicized were the first flight tests of the Air Force's new C-141 Starlifter, capable of carrying 154 troops 3,800 miles at 550 MPH. This was expected to become the nation's most advanced military transport.

But it may be eclipsed by the newly announced effort to build a mammoth 550 MPH craft capable of carrying 600 men 5,000 miles. McNamara said work on the 375-ton giant will start next year.

Trial For Petty Theft Continued

Dirksen Leadership Appears Uncertain

By DON BACON
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — While attention is focused on the open battle for Republican leadership in the House, an equally grave cloud of uncertainty hangs over the party's leadership in the Senate.

The uncertainty centers mostly on Minority Leader Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois and the state of his health.

Dirksen, 69, is convalescing in Debary, Fla., from what has been described as a back injury suffered while he was hospitalized for a kidney infection in mid-October.

The question plaguing Senate Republicans is whether Dirksen's illness and general state of health will allow him to continue in his demanding and fatiguing role as leader.

Meanwhile, unrelated to Dirksen's condition, there are growing indications that dissident Senate Republicans will challenge minority whip Thomas H. Kuchel of California at the party's caucus Jan. 4.

And in still another development, Sen. Thruston Morton of Kentucky is spreading the word that he is eager to step down as chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee.

Dirksen's health has become a discussion topic in Republican circles only in the last few days.

"Dirksen has been issuing statements and giving interviews from Florida that give the impression he is a part of things," commented a Republican source. "But the truth is we really don't know how well Dirksen is."

A spokesman in Dirksen's Capitol Hill office said the popular minority leader will return to Washington for the opening of Congress Jan. 4 and is expected to remain on the job "unless things are so light he can go back" to Florida.

As to the senator's convalescence, the spokesman said cheerfully that Dirksen was "moving along in good shape."

Cultural Swap Pact Extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Romania have agreed on an expanded cultural exchange program for 1965 and 1966.

The agreement was made yesterday in an exchange of notes between William R. Tyler, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, and Romanian ambassador Petre Balaceanu.

The two countries have had exchange programs since 1961. Tyler said the new agreement would provide for an increase in the number of exchanges.

Highway 101 Inclusion In Interstate System Backed

Support of the Marin County Development Assn. has been thrown behind the proposal of Rep. Don H. Clausen (R-Crescent City) that U.S. Highway 101 be investigated for inclusion in the federal interstate highway system.

Carroll A. Snyker, executive vice president of the association, today made public a letter to Clausen expressing the position adopted by officers of the group. The letter declared:

"U.S. 101 is a major north-south trunk route serving several metropolitan and many other urban areas that are continually showing a high rate of growth.

"It is the main road artery serving many varied national defense installations and federal and state recreational areas. The number of the latter is growing, as is the recreation-minded population seeking the division and renewal of well-being that they provide."

Ask Building Permit

Congregation Rodef Sholom has applied for a building permit to construct a Sunday school addition to the synagogue at 170 North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia.

Phone Rates Will Continue

Marin residents phoning to Los Angeles or Sacramento will continue to pay usual rates despite a recent federal order for phone cost reductions on calls between states.

The State Public Utilities Commission asked Pacific Telephone Co. if compliance with the interstate rate cut order wouldn't carry with it some reductions within California.

But the company's response was negative, on the ground that present earnings are "insufficient."

The French National Railways set the world rail speed record in 1955 with a run of 205.5 m.p.h. in a specially adapted electric locomotice.

Deer Runs Into Car; Youth, 17, Injured

David Paul Ruef, 17, of 34 Meadow Drive, Mill Valley, was treated by his own doctor for a cut lip Wednesday after his car hit a deer which darted in front of it at 552 Miller Avenue.

Ruef told police the deer broke his windshield and radio aerial and his lip was cut by flying glass. The accident, in which the deer was killed, was at 1:10 p.m.

Instruction to Land Buyers

First see the land which thou intend'st to buy
Within the sellers title clearly lye,

And that no woman to it doth lay claime
By dowry, joynture, or some other name,

That may incumber, know if bond or fee
The Tenure stand, and that for each feoffee

It be released, that th' sellers be soe old.
That he may lawful sell, thou lawful hold.

Have special care that it not mortgaged lye,
Nor be entailed upon posterity.

Then if it stand in statute bound or noe,
Be well advised what quitt rent out must goe,

What custome service hath been done of old
By those who formerly the same did hold.

And if a wedded woman put to sale

For she doth under covert barren goe
Although sometimes some traffique so we know.

Thy bargain made and all this be done,
Have special care to make thy charter run

To thee, thy heirs, executors, assigns,
For that beyond thy life securely binds,

These things foreknow and done,
you may prevent,
Those things rash buyers many times repent,

And yet when you have done all you can,
If youle be sure, deal with an honest man.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Doctor Calls Children Only Link To Future For Parents

VAN DELLEN

"What's a baby for?" Dr. Victor L. Szanton of Derby, Conn., asked several fathers and mothers this question and obtained a variety of answers. All were unprepared and responded in many moods, often reflecting the problems and needs of the individual. The answers were published in Connecticut Medicine.

A plaintive daddy replied, "To teach us that our lives no longer are our own." A more egostical answer was, "To see the continuation of yourself in a child; the hope that what you haven't achieved in your life, your baby can accomplish." As might be expected, the genealogist said, "If it's a boy, it's to perpetuate the name of the father. It is the only kind of immortality I believe in."

ONE FATHER was belligerent, "What's a baby for? To be a parent later on, to populate the world, that's what for! Anything else you want to know?" Another, according to Dr. Szanton, was more quizzical at first: "Is it a gag?" Then: "Well, I want to raise a family of my own because I like a family. When I was a child, I had a wonderful family."

Mothers responded differently: "For love," said one. Another felt a baby made her a better person because it taught the meaning of responsibility. Still another believed an infant brought the satisfaction of being needed and wanted. A mother, glowing with pride, replied: "A baby gives you companionship. Life is not so lonely." In contrast, "It is better than going out to play bridge." A more vehement and possible psychotic woman replied: "A baby can drive one mad."

DR. SZANTON'S answer to the question was: "A baby is our future, all of our hopes, prayers, our fears, our tears; to carry the thread of life over the horizon with the future. That's what a baby is for!"

We cannot take anything with us into the next world. The only thing parents leave behind are the two seeds that came together to become the child. This is their only genetic link with the future.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

VEIN INFECTION

H. V. M. writes: In a case of thrombophlebitis, how is it determined when it is safe to resume normal activities?

REPLY

When all signs of infection subside. The leg may remain swollen for weeks or months but the individual can be active, provided an elastic stocking or bandage is worn. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on thrombophlebitis.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Here Are Some Shows To Watch

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The Programs: The "CBS Sports Spectacular" series returns Jan. 10 with the Harlem Globetrotters in the season premiere . . . ABC TV's "Wide World of Sports" offers the world professional figure skating championships next Saturday . . . The development of syncopated dancing is the subject of CBS TV's "Camera Three," Jan. 3, with examples of the evolution of jazz steps.

The Headliners: Walter Pidgeon, Lola Albright, Ann Blyth, Jan Murray and George Hamilton appear on ABC TV's "Burke's Law" Jan 13 . . . Barbara Barrie, star of the movie "One Potato, Two Potato," is on view Monday on NBC TV's Alfred Hitchcock Hour.

The Future: If the television series version of the movie "Marty" sells, the title role seems to be in the possession of Tom Bosley, who starred in the Broadway musical "Fiorello" . . . because of the increasing use of color television programs, and because of the medium's increasing reliance on movies, it is probably that in the future more motion pictures will be shot in color, with an eye to the inevitable sales to video.

The Comer: Network talent scouts would be wise to hasten to Las Vegas to catch a young man named Jerry Antes in the "Ziegfeld Follies," in which he stops the Thunderbird Hotel show with repeated displays of old fashioned all around performing in the Fred Astaire manner.

Five Of Family Killed In Crash

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — A gay holiday outing ended on a rain slicked highway early today when five members of a Flint, Mich., family were killed when their car slammed into a concrete pillar on Interstate 75 near here.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Gloria Miller, 27, her three sons, De Land, 8, Glen Jr., 6, and John, 4, and Michael Carter, 20 an in law of the Miller family.

Mrs. Miller's husband, Glen Sr., 27, the driver of the car, was listed in serious condition at Pontiac General Hospital.

OBITUARIES

Addie P. Geister Dies At 79

Addie P. Geister, 79, widow of Henry Geister who was a Corte Madera police and fire chief, died this morning in Marin General Hospital after a short illness.

A resident of Marin County 36 years, she lived at 55 Dolores Street, San Rafael. Her sons operate Geister Bros. Marin Storage and Trucking Co. in San Rafael.

Mrs. Geister and her husband moved to Marin County from San Francisco after he retired from the San Francisco Fire Department. He served as Corte Madera chief from 1928-34 and in Larkspur from 1934-37. Later he was building inspector and deputy assessor for Marin County.

Mrs. Geister leaves four sons: Henry V., August, Melvin and Harold Geister; a daughter, Dorthy Diggs, all of San Rafael; two brothers, Elmer and Leland Tietjen of San Francisco; nine grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

She was past president of Marinita Parlor No. 198, Native Daughters of the Golden West; San Rafael Circle No. 137, Druids, and Ladies Auxiliary, Retired San Francisco Fire Department Assn.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

MRS. KING

Mrs. Beatrice F. King, 64, of 203 Beryl Lane, Mill Valley, collapsed and died of a heart attack early yesterday as she and members of her family prepared to go to midnight church services.

Mrs. King and her family were at the home of a niece, Mrs. Lorraine Silva, at the time. She had been under a doctor's care for a heart condition for several years.

Wife of a retired postal worker, Mrs. King was a native of California. She was a member of the Ladies Auxiliaries of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Mill Valley and the Veterans of World War I, San Rafael.

She is survived by her husband, Joseph, three sisters, Mrs. Mary Fostine of Stockton, Mrs. Rose Muzzy of Alameda and Mrs. Laura Pacheco of San Rafael, four brothers, Tony and Robert Bravo of Mill Valley, George Bravo of San Rafael and Joaquin Bravo of Oceanside.

A Requiem Mass will be offered Monday at 9 a.m. in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Mill Valley. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

W. BAUMHEFNER

A private funeral was held today in San Francisco for Walter Baumhefner, 79, of San Francisco, father of Mrs. Margaret Artoux of Greenbrae.

Baumhefner died in a San Francisco hospital Wednesday after two months' illness.

He was a Lutheran minister until his retirement 15 years ago from the pulpit of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church, Berkeley. He sold real estate from that time until the start of his illness.

A native of Nebraska, Baumhefner lived in California for 40 years and in San Francisco for 20 years.

Surviving are his wife, Clara J. Baumhefner of San Francisco, two sisters, Mrs. Walter Hartung of Deerfield, Wis., and Erna Baumhefner of Norwood, Minn., his daughter, three sons, Clarence Baumhefner of San Francisco, Victor Baumhefner of Los Altos and Walter Baumhefner Jr. of Pasadena, and nine grandchildren.

Burial was in Olivet Memorial Park, Colma. Contributions may be made to the Peace Lutheran Church, Mill Valley.

W. E. BONE

Funeral services for W. Emerson Bone, 83, of Santa Rosa, father of Mrs. Wendell D. Slayton of San Rafael, were held today in Santa Rosa.

Bone died Thursday in a Santa Rosa convalescent hospital after a short illness.

Burial was in San Jose.

PAUL MILLARK

Paul M. Millark, 86, a retired restaurateur, died early yesterday at a local rest home following a lingering illness. He had been a Marin County resident for the past eight years.

Before entering the rest home he had made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Louise M. Dunlap, and her husband at 323 Sausalito Street, Corte Madera.

A native of Germany, he worked in the restaurant business for about 57 years before his retirement in 1953. His last position was with Robert's At the Beach in San Francisco. Millark lived in California for 67 years.

His wife, the late Martha J. Millark, died in December of 1942. In addition to his daughter he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Ida Carlson, and a brother, Arthur Millark, of Moline, Ill.

He belonged to the Fresno Lodge 186, I.O.O.F., and the Woodmen of the World.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Monday at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary in San Rafael. Burial will be in Cypress Lawn Memorial Park in Colma.

OLEN BLAKEMORE

Olen Blakemore, 60, of 1300 Mar West Street, Tiburon, died at his home Wednesday after a brief illness.

Blakemore was a retired groceryman from Oklahoma who had lived in Marin County for two years. He was a native of Prairie Grove, Ark.

He is survived by his wife, Alyce R. Blakemore, two brothers, Jack of Oklahoma City, Okla., and H. S. of Colorado Springs, Colo., and two sisters, Mrs. A. B. Hammond of Plainview, Tex., and Mrs. Joseph Pitman of Liberal, Kan.

Funeral services will be held in Enid, Okla.

JEAN HURST

Mrs. Jean B. Hurst of 297 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, died early today at Marin General Hospital after a long illness. She was 83.

A widow, she leaves a sister, Mrs. Emma Buckbee of San Francisco. Mrs. Hurst entered the hostpital yesterday.

Rain Hampers Search For Missing Fliers

Blinding rain continued today to hamper search for Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vincent Murphy of 500 South Elise Drive, Greenbrae, who disappeared a week ago after leaving San Jose airport for Las Vegas in their single-engined plane piloted by Murphy.

"We can't see the end of the runway," search headquarters reported from Reed's Hillview Airport west of San Jose in midmorning. But soon after six planes began searching the Sierra east of Fresno. Six other planes were to join but could not leave San Fernando airport.

Though nothing has been found of the Murphys or their plane, close search throughout the week by ground parties and such planes as could get into the air has disclosed wreckage of two other planes lost years ago—one in 1946, another in 1947. In both cases the pilots bailed out safely but the debris of their planes had never been located.

Two ground parties were working again today after descending from the hills to get Christmas dinners yesterday.

A Profile Of Marinite Rev. Wesley Baker

'Personal Involvement' Practiced And Preached

By ELLEN DIETSCHY

"If I had not taken a public stand against passage of the oppressive Proposition 14, I would have been guilty of giving my assent to discriminatory practices."

Those words express the belief of Rev. Wesley C. Baker of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

But his participation in the fight against racial discrimination and Proposition 14 was not as fruitful as his work as co-chairman of the Marin County campaign to elect Lyndon B. Johnson.

"MY WORK for the President was a result of my responsibility as a citizen. I felt I was morally bound to work for the election of the best man.

"I saw a philosophy emerge at the Republican convention in San Francisco that I had studied during research for a speech entitled 'Feathers in the American Right Wing, or What Makes the Appalling So Appealing' which I was invited to give to many organizations in the county a few years ago.

"I felt too well-informed about the dangers of a self-centered, strongly hostile form of government to keep out of the battle."

"The Gospel and therefore, the Christian church, is always involved wherever men are making important decisions, whether they be personal, moral, political or social.

"If neither the church nor its members take a stand on these issues, injustices will be allowed to continue or permitted to begin."

The injustice Baker fought against during the recent political campaign — racial discrimination—seemed to him contrary to the principles upon which the United States was founded.

WITHOUT apology, he refuses to confine his activities to expounding theology as some would have him do.

"I would rather speak out in support of the things I believe in and be wrong than be silent.

"A humble Christian can never assume his stand is 100 per cent right in the eyes of God. He can only search for the truth, ask for divine guidance and then do what he thinks he must.

"We who fought against passage of Proposition 14 were fighting against a moral wrong, not against the men who supported it. We will continue to fight against allowing legal discrimination against anyone because of his creed, race or nationality.

"Supporters of the amendment to the constitution stressed that they wanted voluntary integration rather than integration 'forced' upon them by the Rumford Fair Housing Act.

"NOW THESE same people, living in the only state outside the South which has a racially discriminatory law on its books, are morally obliged to voluntarily sign documents like the Covenant of Open Occupancy of the Marin County Committee for Fair Play or the Presbyterian Church pledging they will rent, lease and sell their property without regard to race, religion or national origin.

"I believe the church should strengthen its involvement in its environment. It cannot remain aloof from the problems facing society, nor can it stand aside while support of human dignity is demanded.

"All of us should strengthen our involvement in the work toward world peace, the war on poverty, ending discrimination against minority groups and cutting down the appalling divorce rate.

"OUR CULTURE encourages the destruction of marriage. With no support being lent to the 'middle-age marriage,' forces are working to convince us that romance is either for the young or the unmarried. There is no belief in romance between people who have been married for 10 years.

Baker was born in Seattle, Wash., in January, 1923. He attended Yuma High School in Yuma, Ariz., and Arizona State University, receiving a Bachelor's Degree in education in 1943.

HE MARRIED the former Delma Allgood of Scottsdale, Ariz., two years later and graduated from San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo with a Bachelor of Divinity Degree in 1946.

After his first pastorate in Redmond, Ore., he was sent as an organizing missionary to Norwalk, Los Angeles County, where he founded the Church of the Covenant. Baker was tranferred again to the Shadow Hills Presbyterian Church in Sunland, 25 miles north of Norwalk.

Baker was formally installed pastor of the San Rafael church on Jan. 31, 1960. He and his wife and three children, Becky, 15; Ernie, 13, and Tim, 10, make their home in the Presbyterian manse at 1111 E Street.

IT IS AT home and in his office at the church that Baker has written his first book, "The Split-Level Fellowship."

"It's an analysis of the church, a discussion of what the church really is. I hope it will be controversial," he says.

The book will be published by Westminster-Price of Philadelphia on March 15.

He is working on three other manuscripts. A study on the Book of Job will be sent to the publishers early next year. An analysis of pastoral counseling and its effects and a book on marriage and divorce are "under way."

"OUR SOCIETY over emphasizes sexual deviation. Extra-marital and pre-marital sexual relationships are the favorite subjects of writers whose books have received respectable acceptance.

"The books merely reflect the values of the day. But today's values are making family integrity much more difficult."

Baker willingly sets four hours with couples he will marry as his minimum requirement for pre-marital counseling.

"But I always feel I'm providing bookends for the marriage. One end, that is pre-marital counseling, is provided before any problems arise. The other end suddenly appears after most of the damage is done, the books have fallen and the marriage is going on the rocks."

REV. WESLEY C. BAKER, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, is a firm believer in the involvement of the church in social issues, and refuses to confine his ministry to expounding theology from his pulpit. He was active in the campaign against Proposition 14, and has taken a personal stand on other moral and political issues.

The New Exciting Textures

Mohair is everywhere in coats . . . suits . . . dresses. There are stunning solid-colored and printed pre-brushed mohair souffle coatings. Many are matched with a companion dress fabric. Mohair takes on many faces . . . loop surfaces . . . plump curls . . . a chinchilla look . . . a furry look . . . and the long shaggy hair mohair.

The mood called "the sportive look" has brought a revival of tweeds. The fall silhouette is so slim and lean that fabrics can show off to advantage. Many tweeds have some of the precious fur fibers of reindeer hair combined with wool. Here again companion tweeds, either brushed or plain, are the designer's delight.

Knits are bigger than ever and also create the sportive look. But even bigger news is the use of knits for cocktail and evening fashions. Many of the knit fabrics take on a formal look through the use of jet, gold and silver yarns.

Suedes and simulated suedes run rampant in coats, vests, skirts, jumpers, dresses. They are combined in every conceivable design with tweeds and knitted fabrics.

Designers are doing themselves proud this year.

LOBSTER NEWBURG as served at Sabella's of Marin is an excellent choice for your New Year's Eve supper. And if you prefer to celebrate the big night at home, you can still enjoy the dish—prepared in your own kitchen. Angelo and Lou Sabella give their recipe for Lobster Newburg on this page.

TWO FAVORITES

For 'Something Different' On New Year's, Serve A Seafood

But more and more, people like to celebrate at home but are not quite sure what to serve, particularly if they have been going to holiday parties and are "up to their ears" in turkey and ham.

However, for those people who like to stay home and make it a twosome or foursome, they pass along two recipes which are favored at their seafood restaurant on the Redwood Highway.

It is not only appetizing to look at, but delicious to eat and, best of all, it is the type of entree that can be enjoyed from brunch to midnight supper. It also mixes well with champagne.

Another favorite of Sabella's is Lobster Newburg.

This can be kept in the oven, prepared earlier and served when the magic hour arrives. It is a simple recipe for the home cook and yet is a delicacy that one does not often find on the home menu.

OYSTERS BENEDICT

Saute eight thin slices of boiled ham until delicately browned on both sides. Keep hot. Drain one pint of oysters and saute one minute in same pan. Remove. Split four English muffins and toast. Arrange one slice of hot ham and four or five hot oysters on split muffin; cover with hollandaise sauce, and sprinkle with equal amounts of finely chopped chives and parsley. Put under broiler until delicately browned. (Serves four persons)

LOBSTER NEWBURG

Purchase three two-pound lobsters or two and a half pounds of lobster meat; braise in olive oil and butter. When colored pink, add one cup of sherry wine, let simmer until reduced to one half. Then stir in one pint of thin cream sauce (dilute with chicken bouillon, if necessary). Cover and cook gently for about 12 to 15 minutes, shake pan to keep lobster moist. Place lobster in baking dish, add two slightly beaten egg yolks to the sauce, season to taste with salt, pepper, paprika and a dash of cayenne pepper. Serve at once. (Serves four to six persons)

A HERMAN HEIN landscape reflects the strong feeling that the late landscape architect had for the preservation of the very natural—for rocks, native plantings and materials, the original contour of the land, etc. It was the outgrowth of Hein's love of and respect for nature. And many yards and public grounds throughout Marin benefited from that philosophy.

By MELLON HUNTON

The vibrant liquidamber tree with its vivid orange and red leaves that stands guard over the two-story frame house tucked in a redwood grove in Mill Valley is itself symbolic of the vigorous ideals and feeling for nature of the late Herman Hein who lived there.

The powerful personality of the late dean of Marin County landscape architects still permeates the rooms of the immaculate home.

Born the youngest of three children in Erfurt, Germany, in 1902, young Herman knew what he wanted as soon as he could walk.

HE WANTED the outdoors, and the feel of life in nature. And in his tenderest years, he took an immense interest in the subtleties of nature, noticing things that might escape others his age as he spent hours tramping through woods, questioning, observing, contemplating.

His father was a respected jeweler, known for creativity of design. This talent found its way into the deft hands of the son Herman.

The boy's formal education was the usual liberal arts courses with one very important class in botany and life sciences at the University of Melsungen. There he was greatly influenced by the instructor of that class, a Professor Ulrich, who had an effective, stimulating method with his students.

"HERMAN WAS only 16 then," says Hein's widow, Kathe, "but Professor Ulrich had a creative way with the boys, and he enriched Herman's whole life."

In 1923 Herman brought his young bride, Kathe Lohsen, from northern Germany to California.

"Not to America," Kathe Hein says with a twinkle, "but to the fruit and sun of California."

Herman and Kathe lived in Geyserville, Sonoma County, near relatives, for more than two years, working on a farm and learning English as they acclimated themselves to the sunshine and fruit of their new land.

IN 1925 THE young farmer was offered a "real job" in San Francisco.

The city? He was on the verge of accepting when, with the foresight which was later to epitomize the man, refused the job.

"Anything that is not furthering my goal, my feeling for the natural law of beauty would not be honest," he said then.

Herman was the first to admit that others had different goals, objectives that were right for them. But for him? "I must create, must gain momentum alongside nature."

His hallmark was made that day with his decision.

Two years later, the young couple moved to Mill Valley, and Herman took up gardening. His first tools were his hands.

"Those powerful hands that could move a hundred pound rock or gently snip fading petals from a rose," Kathe says.

"I REMEMBER once," the slight, blonde mother of two children, now adults, smiles, "back when Herman was a boy in Germany, he asked my father if he could sow his field. My father was reluctant to let him because Herman had never sown a field and lost crops were lost money."

At last, Lohsen consented to "let the boy try."

"You know," Kathe Hein throws her head back and quietly laughs, "Herman sowed a perfect field. I don't believe there was one seed lost. Those were Herman's well coordinated fingers!"

On closer study, the driftwood bark takes on an animate shape. Flowing into the lines of the wood are a reclining figure of a young girl whose head of hair become part of the indentations of the wood.

"His idea was to enhance nature," the 39-year-old son says, "never to impose. Often Dad would take a sandwich and hike to the top of the mountain. He might be gone half a day or only a couple of hours, but when he'd return he'd have a design for somebody's garden finished, either in his head or on a scrap of paper. And often he'd have a broken branch of manzanita or madrone with a simple figure whittled on it. Like this."

AS A BOY in Germany, Herman Hein developed a keen interest in the outdoors and in nature. His future choice of a profession, landscape designing, was then a natural development. He came to Marin County in 1927, and was responsible for hundreds of landscape designs in the county, striving always to enhance, rather than to change drastically, nature. He died in February of this year, but left a permanent imprint upon Marin. Some of his most impressive work can be seen at the Marin Art and Garden Center where a memorial fund for further beautification of the grounds and facilities has been established in his name.

RICHARD HEIN, an acknowledged devotee of his father's, is an architectural designer. He and his wife, Alice, live in San Anselmo with two daughters, Lora, age 14, and Kristi, 13, and two sons, Eric, 10 and Peter, 6. The children need no factual reminder of their forceful grandfather for his personality invades the air.

The Hein daughter, Linda, married Gero Marten who was associated with Herman for almost eight years. They, with their children, Gero Jr., Volker, Helmut, Holle and Heide, now live near Weisbaden, Germany, where Gero is continuing in the landscaping profession.

The list of satisfied Herman Hein clients would make a condensed telephone book. But during his last six years the landscape gardener chose to limit his work to design and to supervision, only.

ASIDE FROM the myriad of homes where he has "enhanced nature rather than insult it," his work may be seen outside the new Hilton Hotel in San Francisco, and in the gay planting along Miller Avenue in Mill Valley.

He has many permanent exhibits at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Here niches with benches, natural driveways following gentle contours, a pool by the giant sequoia and the sweeping entrance to the center grounds all show the creativity and fluidity of Herman Hein.

It was natural that this dedicated man should give an abundance of himself both personally and professionally to the Marin Art and Garden Center. Here he left a "living memorial" in trees and verdure so natural none looked planted. It all "fit."

AN APPROPRIATE Herman Hein Memorial Fund for beautification of the art and garden grounds has been established.

For that fund, Mrs. Russell Smith of Ross is beginning a series of five Friday afternoon lecture and color slide programs on "January in the Orient" next Friday at the center, with proceeds to be used for seating at the amphitheater.

"DO YOU consider yourself a success?" the landscape designer was once asked.

"Success? What do you mean by success?" the perfectionist asked. "If you mean an accumulation of money I am not a success. If you mean am I 'satisfied,' I am not satisfied — yet — so I am not a success.

"If you mean 'am I happy?,' "am I doing what I like to do each day?,' this I call 'success' and therefore I am successful."

He grinned, "A quotation from the Sanskrit I like tells it better than I can. Here it is:"

"Live well today for it is life,
The very way of life
In its brief course lies all the possibilities and potentials of your existence
The bliss of growth, the glory of action and the splendor of Beauty.
For yesterday is already a dream
And tomorrow is but a vision,
But every day lived well
Makes every tomorrow a vision of Hope
And therefore live well today!
Such is the salutation of the Dawn!"

BIG JIM HOLOHAN, an ex-sheriff, became warden of San Quentin Prison in 1928, succeeding Frank Smith. He was in charge of the institution during the period described by Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly on these pages. And she, then a young reporter for United Press, found him most helpful and courteous when her news assignments brought her to the prison. (Photos from collection of Dr. Leo L. Stanley)

The San Quentin Story

A Young Reporter Visits The Prison During Big Jim Holohan's Regime

(Editor's Note: Florence Donnelly, Independent-Journal historian, continues her history of San Quentin Prison, covering in this issue the period that began when James B. Holohan succeeded Frank Smith as the prison warden in 1928.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

It was fortunate for me that early in my newspaper career, as a reporter for United Press, now United Press International, when I was assigned to cover San Quentin Prison, Jim Holohan was its warden.

Like other wardens, Holohan had his critics. Some said the job of riding herd on thousands of men in the "biggest" Big House in the world was too much for him, and that he was gullible. But no one could say he was not a brave and honest man.

I had been reared in San Rafael, but I had never visited the prison until I was assigned to duty there.

Like most other Marinites, I had considered the prison a necessary evil—something that had to be endured.

I HAD always remembered a lurid invitation to an execution at the prison that my father had received. It had been lettered in vivid purple, green and blue by a convict who, I suppose, considered it a work of art.

My recollections also included times of alarm when, upon learning that a prisoner was outside the walls, my father would telephone home and warn us to lock the doors. Only a few hills separated our San Rafael home from the prison.

Jim Holohan, a large man with a kindly smile, gave me a firm handshake when I was introduced to him. He was most helpful. And when I requested an interview with one of his more notorious charges, he had me escorted from the warden's office to the interview room.

THERE I sat before a small, barred window to await the arrival of the prisoner, who proved to be a disappointment in that he had nothing to say that provided me with "good copy." He repeated only that which he had said earlier at his trial.

But I was much interested in the other people in the waiting room, trying to guess why they were there.

There were mothers who were easy to distinguish, their eyes red from many tears. But there were also bold-looking women, faces heavy with makeup, and some sinister-appearing men who looked as though they should have been on the convict side of the interview window.

OFTEN MY assignments at the prison were day-long affairs. Then I would eat in the officer and guard mess.

There I would talk with Dr. L. L. Stanley, prison surgeon. He told me of one of his most rewarding operations, a plastic surgery, while keeping the name of his patient secret.

The man, he said, had come to him pleading for relief from a face that had made his life a hell. Trying not to be too technical, Dr. Stanley explained how he had trimmed down the man's cauliflower ears, readjusted the nasal bones and smoothed out heavy lines from the face.

It was not until the doctor's "Men At Their Worst" was published that I learned the convict prisoner he had told me about was the notorious Blaisdell also known as "The Wolf."

THE MAN had been unruly and vicious, refusing to work, threatening guards and inciting riots. He had made an attack on Dr. Stanley. And the doctor was only too aware that the prisoner hated him.

But the Wolf was brooding. Soon he would be leaving prison, returning to his wife, and to a child who had never seen him.

He came to Dr. Stanley, the man he hated, for help. The operation was a success. And the prisoner, seeing the world from behind a new face, found it a far more pleasant one. The whole course of his life was changed.

THEN THE doctor was besieged by prisoners who wanted their faces "fixed." Deformed, ugly faces create despair, the doctor believed. So he continued to perform plastic operations whenever he believed it would improve substantially the moral fiber of the prisoner.

Frequently I visited the women of the prison. Their building, at the southern edge of the reservation, bore no resemblance to the cottage in which the first female inmates had been housed.

But only Clara Phillips, who had hammered her love rival to death, managed to look really "sexy."

CLARA WAS always attractive to men, and in prison the male convicts tried to smuggle letters to her. I found her easy to talk to, quick to grasp an idea, highly intelligent. Her main concern, of course, was when her parole would come through.

Josephine Jackson was the head matron. However, she was unable to forestall the problems that were created by the rivalries among her charges.

Mrs. Louise Peete, who never admitted murdering the wealthy man who had befriended her and burying the body in his own basement, was known as "the Enigma Woman." She was the power at the women's prison, and had a faculty for having her own way. She was motherly-looking with a sweet smile that was disarming. When she was out on parole, she made many friends, played a wonderful game of bridge, but she also played with life and death.

The women's rooms reflected their personal tastes.

CURTAINS HID the iron bars of the windows. The beds were covered with colorful spreads and, in silver frames on the dressers, were pictures of loved ones.

Cells of Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Peete were in exquisite taste. Furnishings of some other cells were gaudy, expressing the life the women had lived outside the walls.

At the prison I never saw Dorothy Ellingson, the pretty red-haired "jazz" girl, who, when she was 16, had shot and killed her mother, who had tried to prevent her from going to another wild party.

But I did see Dorothy, her head wobbling from side to side, when she underwent a psychiatric examination. The prettiness was gone from her face and she was just another "mental" case.

THE MOST harrowing time at the prison was the day of an execution.

The prisoners were uneasy, sullen. We reporters would sit outside the warden's office, trying to get some bit of information to feed the hungry papers. We had already telephoned details of how the condemned man had spent the night, whether he slept, what his last requests had been, and what he ate for breakfast. The warden waited for a call which might mean a reprieve.

If no word came, he or his substitute, obliged by law to witness the execution, would leave the office to walk across the pavement and go to the execution chamber. If the case had been highly sensational, some of the men reporters would go with the warden. Women were not allowed to witness an execution. If a reporter did go, he left someone from his paper to hold a phone.

WHEN THE word came from inside that the condemned man was dead and the time of execution was announced, there was a race for the telephones. There was no gallantry then, a man reporter would snatch a telephone from my hand if he could get away with it.

I found it easier to get my message across by telephoning from a little store outside the walls. After that, all of us would talk with the warden or his representative to learn if the dead man had left any messages, what was said and who had claimed the body.

A History Of Theater In Costumes

Stage Greats Have Worn Hamlet Garb

THERE'S THEATRICAL HISTORY in the costumes to be seen on the stage during the current Jack Aranson and Company production of "Hamlet" at Sausalito's Gate Theater. Many world-famed actors have worn them in the past. Here in a scene from "Hamlet" are Jack Aranson in the title role, in garments once worn by the great Anew McMaster; Mary Gerber (behind Aranson) and Eugenie Waldteufel, in gown once worn by Mrs. Patrick Campbell; and Justin Bishop, whose outer robe clad Anew McMaster and Aranson as Shylock and whose under robe was worn by Aranson in many roles in Europe.

The roster or names of those who have worn the costumes seen in "Hamlet" at the Gate Theater in Sausalito reads like a theatrical who's who, according to Mary Rose McMaster, who designed the Jack Aranson and Company show.

Mary Rose (Mrs. Jack Aranson of Mill Valley in private life) becomes misty-eyed as she looks at some of the durable garments that go back to 1930 and earlier.

Among those who have worn them, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Anew McMaster, Anthony Quayle and Harold Pinter are only a few.

"It's fantastic, the way they've lasted (the costumes, that is)," says Mary Rose, who plays Ophelia. "They've been on tour through Ireland, England, New Zealand, India, the Balkans, Egypt, Scotland and I don't know where else."

SHE POINTS to Polonius (Justin Bishop).

"That outer robe of Justin's—I remember seeing my father in it as Shylock when I was a tiny girl. And then last year, Jack wore it in the same role."

She looks at 8-year-old John Aranson, who plays The Prologue in "Hamlet," perhaps wondering whether one day he too will wear the robe and play the "Merchant of Venice."

About half the costumes for the current production at the Gate are from the wardrobe of the McMaster Company, sent over from Ireland after "Mac," as Mary Rose's actor-father was known, died in 1962. The other half are new, constructed by Mary Rose and her assistant, Christine Sunier.

As Rosenkrantz, the king's spy, comes on, the audience admires the jet black doublet he wears. Mary Rose remembers it on Anthony Quayle, now one of the world's leading Shakespearean actors, when he played the same role to Mac's "Hamlet."

ARANSON, AS Hamlet, wears the same tights and the same white shirt that for many years were seen on Mac as the melancholy Dane. To McMaster went the honor of playing Hamlet for the opening of the Memorial Theater at Stratford-on-Avon.

THE PLUM COLORED JACKET on six-foot five-inch Rand Bridges, left, was made especially for the current production of "Hamlet" at the Gate by Mary Rose McMaster and Christine Sunier, as was Jack Aranson's velvet jacket, modeled on one worn by the late Anew McMaster. But Karl Barron, right, as Marcellus, is clad in a leather jerkin so old that no one can remember when it wasn't a part of the Shakespearean wardrobe department.

AS SHYLOCK in last season's production of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Gate in Sausalito, Jack Aranson wore this costume in which Ireland's famed Anew McMaster once played the same role.

The Costumes Have A History

he wears a suit of chain mail (simulated) which Mac wore as Macbeth when he played opposite Mrs. Patrick Campbell. ("Before I was born," Mary Rose notes.)

As Gertrude, the queen in "Hamlet," Mrs. Campbell wore the gown which drapes the slender form of Eugenie Waldteufel each Friday and Saturday night on the stage of the Gate.

KARL BARRON, playing three roles, seldom fails to stir a memory from Mary Rose. As the Second Player or the Player King (which he portrays in the absence of Peter Abenheim) the costume is made for Christopher McMaster as Laertes. Christopher, brother to Mary Rose, is now a director of Granada Television in Manchester, England.

The actress-designer also remembers well the trappings of Osric. "It's always been Osric's," she says, "But I don't remember anyone of note who played him." Alas, poor Osric. Sir Alec Guiness played him years ago, but not in the Gate's purple costume.

The current Laertes, Tam High drama teacher Daniel Caldwell, wears a costume which was made for Harold Pinter as Horatio in the same play. Pinter, of course, is now world renowned for his plays—notably "The Caretaker."

The Gate's Horatio is six-foot, five-inch Rand Bridges, who brings along his own shirts and tights, and whose doublet, for obvious reasons, was made to order by Mary Rose and Christine.

IN THE closet scene, Mrs. Waldteufel wears a gown which Mary Rose and others through the years have donned to play Portia. Mary Rose's mother figured out that at least nine different Portias had worn that gown.

Many of the costumes are familiar to Jack Aranson. A robe worn by Kevin O'Sullivan was Jack's when he played Iago to Mac's "Othello."

Bishop's underrobe was worn by Aranson as Antonio in "The Merchant of Venice" and as Ludovico in McMaster's 1952 "Othello."

THE OLD saw, "They don't make 'em thataway any more" may be true in this case. Mary Rose points out that these costumes saw service every day and sometimes twice or more a day, for uncounted years. And though they are sometimes torn in the heat of the play, a patch and they continue to serve—and serve well and colorfully.

Jack recalls the robe worn by Lucianus (Barron or Kevin O'Sullivan) and remembers when Eugene Wellesley wore it in the 1952 MacBeth.

"He remembered wearing that same robe in 1935," says Jack.

While Hamlet itself has the mileage of 400 years upon it, Mary Rose figures the older half of the Gate's wardrobe has done and will continue to do — right well.

AND HARDLY a character steps upon the stage but she recalls a happy past, steeped in theatrical tradition, a name now famous, or perhaps, like Osric's, forgotten. But the memories are never dull—nor is "Hamlet."

The Aranson company will be presenting a special New Year's Eve performance of the play next Thursday night, in addition to their regular Friday and Saturday evening shows.

12 Months Of Marin Magazines

ANOTHER YEAR of Marin Magazines, 52 issues, have gone into the files, with cover photographs that reflect the diversity of interests that makes Marinites and their activities so interesting. Here are some of those 1964 covers. Remember them, and the stories that went with them? Top row, left to right: Sometimes it is a Marinite or Marinites at their jobs that turn up on the covers. For instance, the men of Battery C, Second Missile Battalion, 51st Artillery, manning the Nike-Hercules installation north of San Rafael, or Marin Humane Society officer Bernie Weller staging a "roundup" of stray cattle, smog control inspector Paul Brand making his rounds of industrial installations, a surgical team operating at Ross General Hospital, or collegian Jerry Cuff at his boat servicing business. Animals frequently turn up on the magazine covers including Seba the mountain lion and Cammie the Great Dane. Bottom row, left to right: Hobbyists make good cover photos, and they included young taxidermist Don Hanks, "green thumber" Mrs. W. G. Frome, home winemaker Pietro Pinoni, and auto enthusiast Robert Davies in his 1934 Rolls-Royce convertible. Sometimes it's just Marin scenery such as the Civic Center cascades, or an illustration for a story on arts such as the one about Mrs. Ruth Mills Stearns and the Paul Yungling collection of Oriental treasures, or a Marin civic figure such as Edward L. Keber, commander of Marin's John H. Harris Camp of the surviving veterans of the long ago Spanish-American War. Center row: Children are always superb cover photo subjects, and 1964's roster included a concerned young Billy Bohan at extreme right receiving first aid from a Reed School District Gray Lady, and softball batboys Dave Leatherwood and Billy Beyer in the center photo. Then most puzzling of the 1964 cover pictures was the one on the immediate right by Dave Mayhew, of a magazine cover taken before it was published.

An Original Idea Triggers A Novel

By DON KEOWN

CORRIDORS OF POWER by C. P. Snow, Charles Scribner's Sons, 402 pages, $5.95.

Ted Carroll has built his first novel, "White Pills," upon a provocative premise: A new scientific discovery that alters pigmentation so that the Negro can attain a light complexion.

He then explores the repercussions of that development, with particular attention to Sonny Calhoun, a young Florida segregationist who suddenly finds himself the butt of, rather than the practitioner of, discrimination.

The imaginative idea that serves as the core for the novel is sufficient to attract, and for the most part, to hold reader interest. This is fortunate for the book, for the story in which Carroll has wrapped his idea is not on par with its nucleus.

Carroll's narrative technique is simple, direct, readable and quite acceptable. But his storytelling is lacking in depth. Characters are more types than people. Incidents seem more inventions to make moral points than actual happenings.

In other words, there is a straining to make those points, so that what results are too-pat solutions to the problems that the author has posed for his cast.

It is disappointing that such a highly original story idea has been accorded such conventional treatment. And yet, so interesting and challenging is this central idea that the book, despite the defects, must still be classified as absorbing, worthwhile reading.

ADMITTEDLY we are tardy in reading and reporting on C. P. Snow's "Corridors of Power."

However, books by the eminent British novelist and physicist can be relied upon to remain with us for awhile. They do not quickly disappear from bookstore and library shelves.

"Durable" is one word for Snow. "Weighty" is another. Some might say "ponderous." "Ambitious" and "persevering," certainly.

"Corridors of Power" is number nine in an 11-book cycle which Snow has undertaken, using his Lewis Eliot alternately as participant and observer.

This time, Eliot is relegated largely to the "reporter" role, observing from an advisory post the career of ambitious English politician Roger Quaife who chooses the British War Office as his corridor to power.

As in his other novels, Snow once again focuses attention upon a pressing national or world problem—this time, England's course in nuclear armament.

Characteristically, Snow eschews the sensational. He sets a leisurely pace. And he avoids emotionalism.

It is difficult to work up a great deal of enthusiasm for a Snow book. Yet, one feels the necessity to treat it with respect. For Snow writes well. He tackles issues of immense importance. And he tells an unhurried story that both entertains and enlightens.

"Corridors of Power" is not the most exciting novel of this year and has created no big stir. But it is meaty. And it is the work of a man whose ideas as expressed through his characters command our attention and our consideration.

THE IOWA State University Press has published "Economics and Public Policy in Water Resource Development," edited by Stephen C. Smith and Emery N. Castle. Twenty-two experts write on the problem of adequate water supplies, with special attention to the West.

MYRON Brenton's "The Privacy Invaders" is now available in paperback format, published as a Crest edition by Fawcett World Library.

SECRETARY of Interior Stewart L. Udall's "Quiet Crisis" has been reprinted by Avon Books as a 95-cent paperback.

THE FAMOUS Kitwancool totem pole, "Skim-sim and Will-a-daugh," is included among the illustrations in "The Totem Pole Indians" by Joseph H. Wherry. Wilfred Funk Inc. is the publisher.

REPORTS FROM OUR REVIEWERS

Imperfect Plotting

THE MEN WHO TRIED TO KILL HITLER by Roger Manvell and Heinrich Fraenkel, Coward-McCann, 261 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The plot within German army and civilian groups to kill Adolf Hitler and end World War II was a long time forming. Various unrelated groups, by differing routes, came to the same conclusion: Hitler must die to save Germany and the world.

The intricate plotting forms the first portion of "The Men Who Tried to Kill Hitler" by Roger Manvell and Heinrich Fraenkel. The plots were a confused maze, and their narration is almost as confusing.

Confusion vanishes, though, when the authors reach the second part: The events of July 20, 1944. That was the day the plan went into action, the day Count Stauffenberg planted a bomb in a briefcase beside Hitler's feet in the "Wolf's Lair." He saw the bomb explode; he believed the fuehrer dead; he called the code which was to be passed on to Berlin—but from there on, all went wrong.

The long plotting had produced a highly imperfect plan. The seizure of the government by the plotters came off as scheduled only in occupied Paris.

For their failure, most of the plotters died at the hands of Nazi executioners. Hitler, more distrustful than ever of his generals, conducted the war with increasing madness — until he, too, died violently, in a Berlin bunker as the allies bombed and shelled the city.

The authors of "The Men Who Tried To Kill Hitler" have surrounded their story with a rather elaborate apparatus. And they fail to find direct routes through the maze of plotting that preceded action. But from the start of July 20 through the trials of the plotters, the story moves quickly, even desperately — as did the men who played its tragic roles.

Who's To Blame?

PARENTS NOT GUILTY! by Edmund Bergler, M.D., Liveright, 283 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

The late psychoanalyst says in discussing the differences existing among normal and delinquent children, "It is this element of individuality in the child that limits the parents' effectiveness and therefore must limit their guilt as well."

If, judging from his title, you are expecting to get completely off the hook with a stronger statement than the above, you will be disappointed.

According to the dustjacket, this book is directed to the layman. It misses its mark. The writing is muddled, rambling, often irrelevant to the title, and embarrassingly commercial, referring mostly to Bergler's previous books and only a few times directly to Freud.

Perhaps if the prolific Dr. Bergler had taken time out from grinding out these many publications he might have been free to study what has been written by his more scientific colleagues, such as Dr. Dorothy W. Baruch in the field of sex education and Dr. Rudolf Dreikurs in child education (who share many of his views but express themselves better and have more practical help to offer their readers).

The Explanations

THE DEFEAT OF THE CONFEDERACY, edited by Henry Steele Commanger, D. Van Nostrand Co., 189 pages, paperback, $1.45. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

As North and South opened war in 1861, military experts abroad were almost unanimous in believing the Confederacy would triumph in the contest of arms. Four years later, when Robert E. Lee surrendered his tattered army to Ulysses S. Grant, opinion was nearly as unanimous that federal victory had been inevitable.

What happened to change the view so drastically?

There are almost as many explanations of the Confederate defeat as there are historians. Most place heavy emphasis on the North's superiority in manpower and industry; yet, as Henry Steele Commager points out in the introduction to "The Defeat of the Confederacy," this advantage of the North was known when the war started—and was considered insufficient for successful invasion of a country in revolt.

Commager has gathered in this paperback volume extracts from many historians, both North and South, presenting differing reasons why the Confederacy failed. One theme runs through many of them, however, and is most succinctly stated by Frank E. Vandiver in a portion quoted from his volume, "Rebel Brass":

"Struggling to fight a national war amid states rights ideas was an impossible task. Total war could not be waged piecemeal."

"The Defeat of the Confederacy" is an excellent condensation of much writing on a subject often lightly dismissed in northern histories.

On Krebiozen

PERHAPS TO LIVE by Jim Buford, American Southern Publishing Co., 246 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

"A fair, impartial test is all we ask," he says along with Dr. A. C. Ivey of University of Illinois, who has been researching the drug despite opposition from an American Medical Assn. group and the Federal Drug Administration.

Never claiming it a "cure" drug, Buford does say he has found help from Krebiozen and charges that a small group in Illinois has conspired to prevent its general use. Currently, the law allows use of the drug only in the state of Illinois, where it is made.

Sleuths & Suspense

Writer John Shawfield, having just split up with his actress wife, beautiful but selfish Sylvia Court, goes to the Scottish Highlands to get away from it all.

Immediately he is pounced on by a fading local beauty who keeps her red-haired daughter under wraps and a crazed would-be chronicler of ancient Scot tribal conflicts.

These are enough odds to deal with, but Shawfield also would return to London to do his wife in. There's a murderer loose, and murder is committed. There are no telephones. There are ghosts. There's a strange horse and a cold, biting winter. And there's love.

For those who like atmosphere, a very British story and conscience wrestling, this is their cup of tea.

THE BLESSINGTON METHOD and Other Strange Tales by Stanley Ellin, Random House, 185 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Stanley Ellin is undoubtedly a master of the suspense short story that ends on a chilling note with an Alfred Hitchcock-O. Henry "reverse twist."

"The Blessington Method and Other Strange Tales" is his second published collection of such ghoulish stories. A number of the inclusions here have appeared previously in other anthologies.

You'll meet the murderous schoolboy tormenting his teacher, the methodical specialist in arson, the electrocutioner, a business-like professional killer, a faith healer and a host of kindred macabre and eerie souls.

Ellin handles them all expertly. But it is the kind of book we prefer to take in small doses. A story or two at a time suffices.

NEW YEAR'S EVE

The clock strikes 12—
Time to make a change
In the pattern of our lives;
We've resolved to rearrange,
Our intentions are good,
But a pattern's hard to alter,
And although we are sincere
And don't intend to falter,
We always, it seems—
And I say this with sorrow—
Decide not to start till
Day after tomorrow.

NOVATO — JULIE THOMPSON

ETERNAL QUESTION

How shall I know,
What way the clearest
Where enchantment lies,
Where fulfillment is assured
Nothing disguised?

How shall I know
Which path is true
Minus uncharted pitfalls
Left by former wanderings
And distraught seeking?

Yet I shall know
There is one way
Into realms where planted seeds
Grow in fruitful understanding.

Yes, I shall know
By the calmness felt within
And mind looks upon the scene
As a third party viewing.

SAUSALITO — FRANCISCA McCLUGGAGE

ONE MAN

One man can make a difference,
And every man should try
To conquer his indifference,
And build his own mind's eye.

HOMAGE TO SHAKESPEARE, devised and directed by George Bylands—Argo mono NF-4:

This massive undertaking brings together an impressive roster of actors and actresses including Peggy Ashcroft, Edith Evans, John Gielgud, Laurance Olivier, Sybil Thorndicke, Michael Redgrave, Donald Wolfit and many others in homage to the Bard from both his contemporaries and ours.

It was produced in connection with the Shakespeare Exhibition which has been traveling around England.

Side One is concerned with the famous Globe Theater and features excerpts from the later plays of Shakespeare. Side Two pays tribute to the playwright in poetry, prose and music—the latter includes the Jaye Consort of Viols and the Kneller Hall Trumpeters.

They now have records for everybody, even babies.

Relatively little is known so far about just what sort of sounds babies swing with. Like, find the right sounds and baby will shut up and be content.

Researchers have found that what they like most is monotony and repetition, and also that high tones are preferred to low ones. Using this information as a guide, composer - arranger Raymond Scott has created three volumes of "music" for babies, using an electronic organ and various other tape-music techniques.

It may be all right for baby, but can the parents stand it?

HERE'S GODFREY CAMBRIDGE, Ready or Not . . .—Epic FLM 13101:

The young Negro comic, who was a hit in the film "Purlie Victorious," has recently become a TV hit as well. While his material is not completely original, much of it is very funny, and Cambridge's delivery (like any good comic) is 75 per cent of the fun.

DOBRO COUNTRY! Tut Haylor and group—World Pacific Stereo 1829:

Another odd-ball folk instrument LP.

Taylor is evidently one of the country's leading (only) virtuosi on the 12-string Dobro, which he invented himself using the rather rare guitar-like instrument usually reserved for country music as the basis. The Dobro has a large metal sounding board and operates on the principle of the electric guitar without electricity (just the thing for the backwoods shack).

HUNGARIAN GYPSY! The Rajko and The Hungarian Gypsy Orchestra—Monitor MF 418:

I can't resist this music; it really swings just like good jazz and there's no denying it has plenty of "soul".

I recognized only one of the dozen tunes, which is fine; "Dark Eyes" and "Hora Stacatto" have a way of showing up on almost every LP of Gypsy music.

This music is more authentic than the run-of-the-mill gypsy music recording, and therefore even more exciting. The exclamation mark in the title is fully justified.

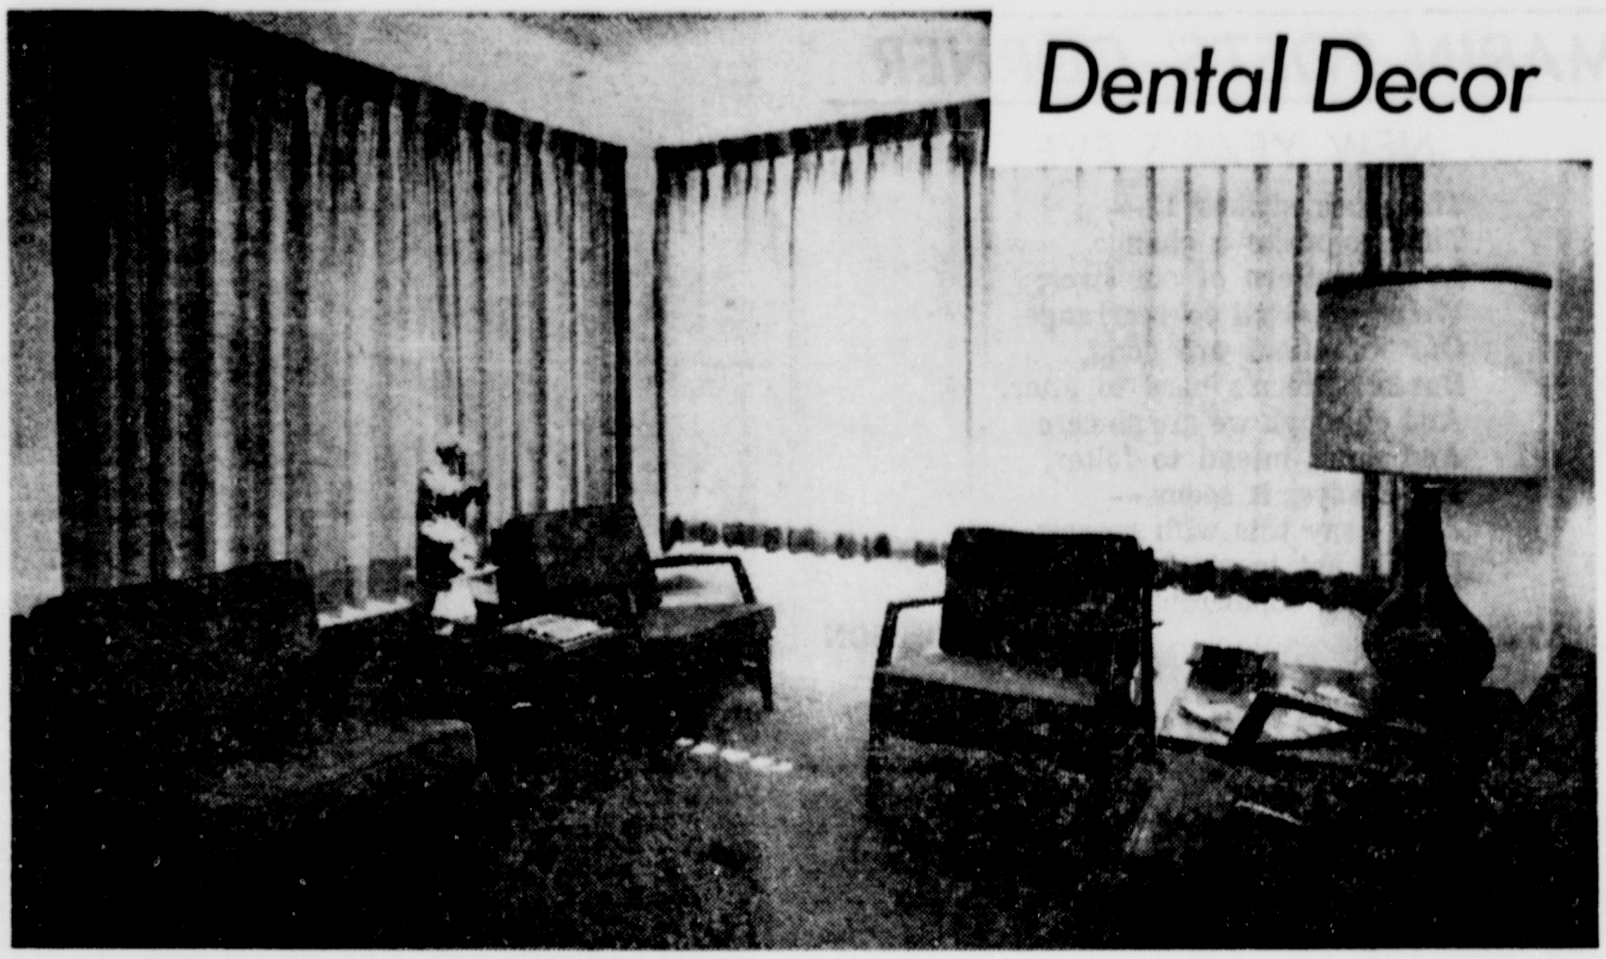
Dental Decor



THE NEW look in dentist's offices is one of relaxation and serenity. A prime example is the new office of Dr. James H. McCray at 231 Flamingo Road, Mill Valley, decorated by J. M. Boyd of Braverman's. Here in the waiting room, the decor is soothing and restful. Furniture is Danish imported. Chairs are an avocado green, the carpet a burnt persimmon, the drapes striped in persimmon and earth tones. His approach, decorator Boyd says, was to do the decorating from the patient's point-of-view — to escape the cold and purely functional atmosphere usually associated with the dental office.

ADDING TO the attractiveness of Dr. James H. McCray's office suite is the use throughout of pieces from the dentist's collection of Oriental etchings and prints. Stained glass work seen here in the reception room is by John Lukas of San Francisco. The receptionist can "see through" the glass, thus eliminating the need for the usual disquieting "peephole."

THE PRIVATE consultation office of Dr. James H. McCray, as decorated by J. M. Boyd of Braverman's, also features the restful avocado green found throughout the suite. More of the Oriental art and pieces collected by the dentist while in the Orient can also be seen in this picture. Here Dr. McCray can talk with his patients in relaxed privacy. The atmosphere is also conducive to concentration and study on the part of the doctor. It is professional-like in appearance without being too cold and impersonal.

THE PATIENT'S DREAD of the dental chair disappears or at least diminishes when he can gaze out onto such surroundings as the landscaped garden that is separated only by a wall of glass from the office of Dr. James H. Planning Pays Off In Your Landscaping

Gardening Page

The start of a new year is the perfect time for you to sit down and plan your garden.

You will find that it keeps expenses and efforts down to a minimum and yet the beauty of the garden is unsurpassed. There are very few things as rewarding as a well-planned garden.

The first step is to pay a call on your nurseryman. He may suggest you call in a landscape architect, or he may sit down with you and work it out in detail.

BUT YOU can enjoy the fun of planning, too.

1. Make an outline of your property to scale. If you get it down on paper it's very easy. Once you see the relationship of your house and surrounding land, you can make sensible plans.

2. Before you start laying out your garden, discuss just what it is you want. Is it to be a quiet, sheltered garden where you will have a few friends from time to time and otherwise raise your pet plants? Is it going to be more open—a place where many people can gather, barbecue steaks, play badminton, etc.? Do you have to plan for children? A place where kids can skate or climb or ride bikes and a place where adults can have a little respite? It makes a whale of a difference in the layout of your yard just what purposes it has to serve. Once you have that clearly in mind . .

3. Decide where the permanent structures should or must go. A patio normally is an extension of the house, hence is located near the side or back door. But this is not an inflexible rule. Maybe you have an old tree you want to retain, and you want your patio under it. You must then settle for a path from rear door to patio. It doesn't really matter as long as the result is what YOU want—not what someone else says you ought to have. Walls, pergolas, fixed planter boxes, play equipment—these things should be spotted where they are going to stay. Once you put down that slab of cement it's pretty hard to uproot.

4. Indicate where you think you'll want the "permanent" plant items—this would include trees, lawns and most shrubs. It is true that you can move a great deal of plant material — even large pines—if you find something clouded your vision when you were planning, but it isn't advisable. Indicate your permanent plantings on the plan. Your nurseryman can tell you where the plan can be improved.

5. Once you have all the permanent structures and plants on your plan, you can make as many plans as space permits for the more transient annuals, bulb beds, vegetable patches and the like. In doing this, it is wise to allow plenty of room for the plants to grow. Those tiny bedding plants that come to four inches high grow to be big plants —zinnia, dahlia, delphinium. Whatever you plant, always remember to give it enough room to reach its normal height and width. (This is very important for your shrubs, naturally.) An excellent way to see whether the curves of your walks or lawn or whatever will look right is to use the hose to make an outline. If possible get up high (a second story window) and look down on your pattern. It is easy then to make adjustments and get a fairly good idea of how the overall design will look when complete.

6. Select your plant material. Try to get some idea of what you would really like by collecting the names of trees and shrubs grown by friends, neighbors or even strangers who have what you find beautiful. Then you can take your plan and your ideas to your nurseryman. He will be able to correct any mistakes and make suggestions for new and improved plant materials you may never have heard of. He can give you any advice you need on how and when to plant.

You will find that trees and shrubs start small, so for the first year or two you may want more annuals than you will want later on. Your nurseryman will be able to help you pick the ones for the various seasons.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

- Next week is an important one in the care of gift plants. Give them plenty of water and an occasional airing outside the stuffiness of a heated room.
- You get color in two seasons of the year from the flowering Japanese Cherries. In spring, their blooms burst forth in a spectacular salute to that season, while in fall, before they shed their leaves, they take on fall hues in vivid and lovely shades. Plant them now during the bareroot season.
- A trellised row or two of blackberries can provide a year-round treat for the home gardener. For the several weeks in summer when they are loaded with fruit, they provide fresh berries daily and in quantity. The excess can be harvested for jams and jellies or frozen for use when the vines are not producing. Ask your nurseryman about the best design for a blackberry trellis.
- Pots standing in dishes should be checked during wet weather to insure that no excess water is left to damage the plant.
- The deciduous Saucer Magnolias are one of the most colorful contributors to the garden in early spring. Their cups of bloom—usually white with varying degrees of purple — are borne in such profusion as to cover the tree or shrub entirely before the foliage arrives. Slow growing, they will fit into pocket-size situations in practically any garden.

Make Good Use Of Bad Weather

Should the weather prevent your working outdoors, take the opportunity to check over your garden tools.

Shop For The New Roses Early

"Roses in December" is not only the name of an old song—it's also a good rule for gardeners.

Winter bareroot planting is the healthiest and most natural way for roses to become established, and this is the time to choose among the new varieties available this year.

Mister Lincoln is a deep, rich, glowing velvety crimson hybrid tea with an underlying luminescense that sets above and apart from all other red roses. Its fragrance is an intense and spicy tea, a caressing bouquet that gently and unmistakeably fills a room.

THE HUGE, well-formed blooms, often six inches or more in diameter, are full doubles, with each of the forty or more petals appearing to have been cut from the same piece of thick, crimson velvet cloth. With heavy, well-branched canes, Mister Lincoln is tall, strong and vigorous like the revered rail-splitter himself.

Camelot is a totally different sort of rose, classic and regal, reminding one of the gallant knights and lovely ladies of the storied city of King Arthur. Camelot, her luminous coral-pink shining through a lovely iridescence, is an ever-blooming grandiflora, tall, vigorous and busy with large lustrous green leaves, and many petaled five-inch blooms. Blooming freely and continuously, there are often two, three, or more queenly roses clustered on one stem.

BOTH ROSES are as versatile as they are beautiful. Not only are they at home in the formal rose bed, but they easily adapt to informal plantings, edging, accent plants — and have you ever considered a rose as a hedge?

Camelot, with its tall, bushy growth and many fragrant blooms would make a hedge, strong, serviceable, and gorgeous beyond description.

Ask your nurseryman about other ways to use the new roses in your garden. You may be surprised at how many landscape functions these aristocratic beauties can perform.

Now Is The Time To Buy Your Pool

Handyman's Page

January is hardly the best month of the year for outdoor swimming, even in marvelously mild Marin.

But winter is the ideal season to start thinking about the construction of a swimming pool for your enjoyment when the warmer months do arrive.

There are several good reasons for purchasing a home pool in the winter months, some of which include:

1. After the summer construction rush is over, pool building companies naturally become more competitive. Application of the rule of supply and demand means that you will usually find lower prices in the winter.

2. With the slackening of the peak summer building schedule, pool construction crews usually are able to give the buyer faster action on his pool order in winter.

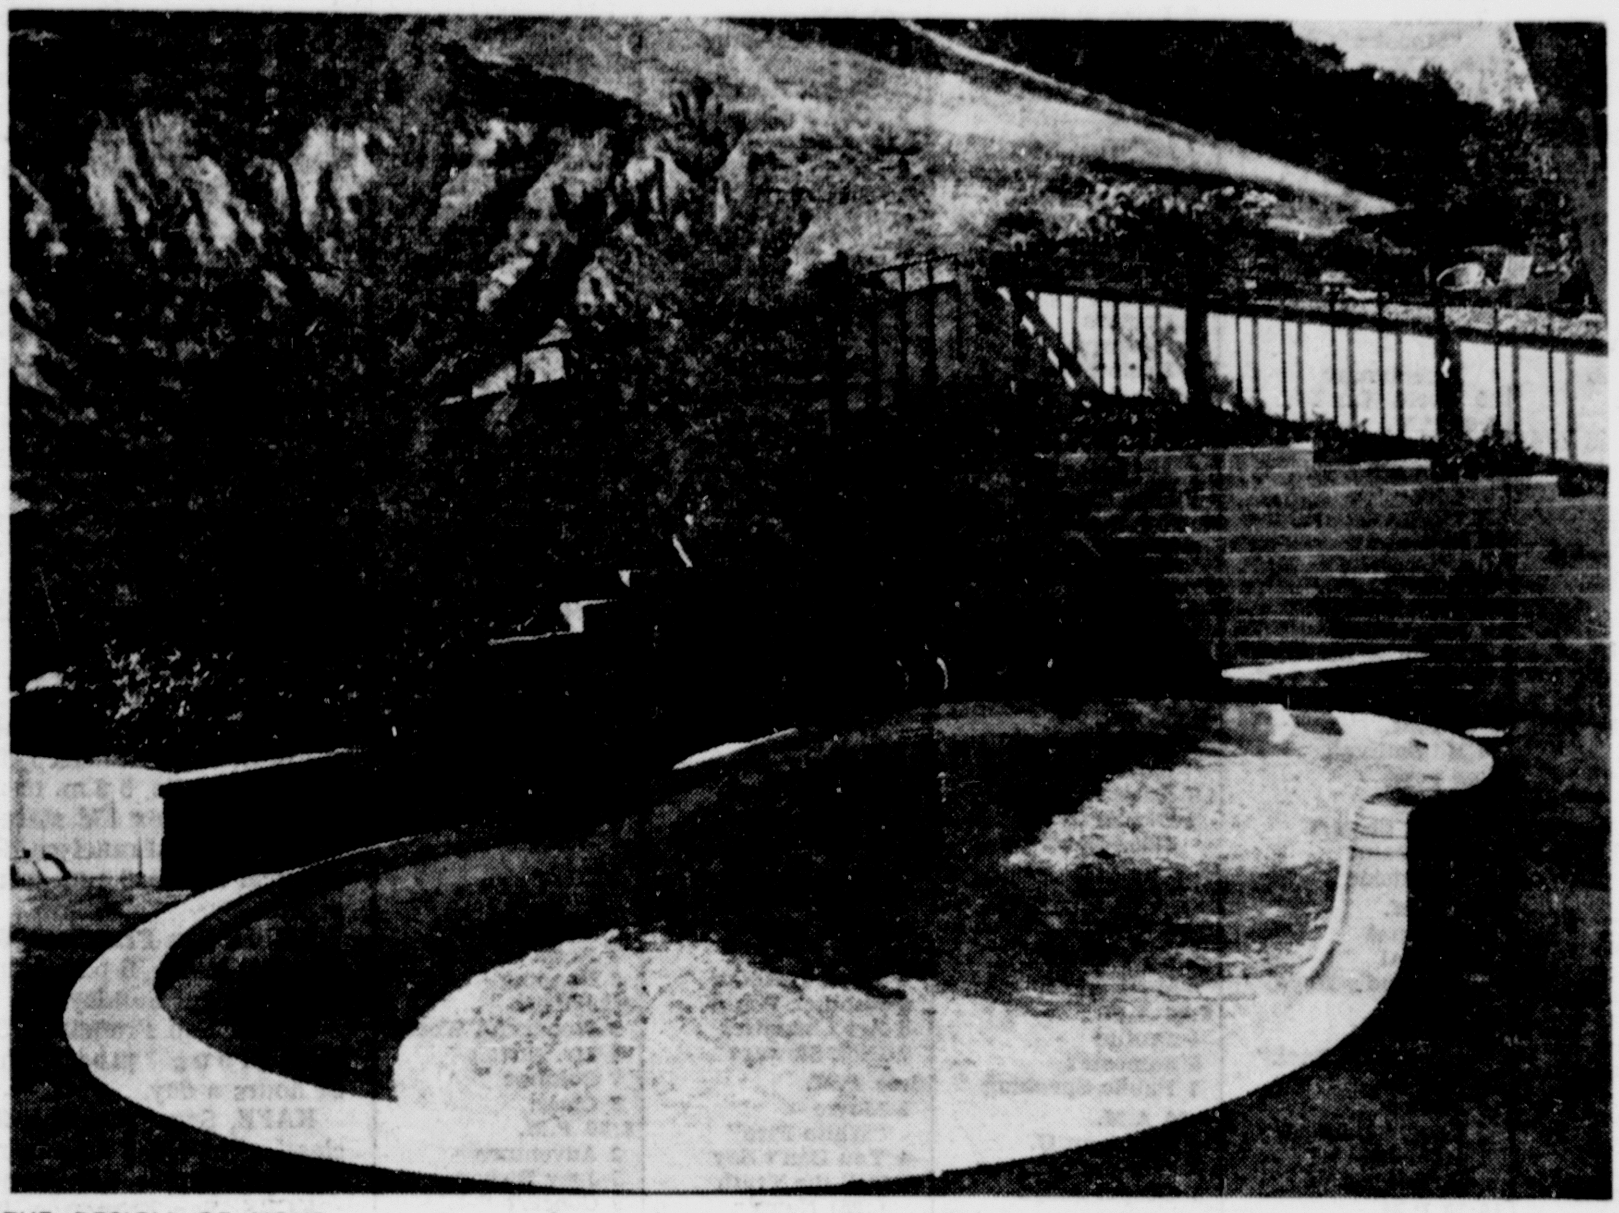
3. Since a winter-built pool normally can be completed in less time, there is minimum disruption to family routine.

4. A pool built in the winter will be ready — and the owners experienced in maintenance — for full summer use as an alternative to travel vacations. "Backyard vacations" may appeal to families who prefer to skip the summer and winter traffic and relax around the patio.

5. It may be more convenient to have a pool excavated during the winter months after children return to school and are not using the backyard as they did during the summer.

6. Many of the best shrubs, trees and foliage for pool landscaping can be planted in the winter, which means that the landscape layout can be thriving in an advanced stage by the following spring and summer season.

7. If you like to entertain outdoors with cook-outs and informal parties, the winter months usually are ideal for weekend socializing. A pool with a generous sized patio gives you a head start to success as a host.



THE DESIGN OF YOUR swimming pool can determine whether it is an attractive asset to the appearance of your home, or simply a recreational facility. You need not be restricted to the more conventional shapes if your terrain and surroundings call for something different. It is an installation that will remain for many, many years, and should be planned with care. This jewel of a pool, perfect for its setting, was built for the Harry Jamiesons of 55 Woodside, San Anselmo, by Blue Haven Pools of San Rafael. Winter, pool builders say, is actually an ideal time for home owners to order their pools, since prices are more competitive than in the busier seasons and construction crews are more readily available.

WEEKEND SHOWS

Treats For Fans Of The Ballet

It should be a big TV weekend for followers of the ballet.

Tonight at 10 o'clock KQED will carry the ballet version of Carl Orff's choral composition, "Carmina Burana," as performed by the Nederlans Dans Theater. It is a reshowing of a program first seen on Channel 9 last September.

Tomorrow night at 9 o'clock, KPIX will offer a filmed performance by England's Royal Ballet, featuring Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev.

This evening's fare includes three movies of exceptional merit — Spencer Tracy and Katherine Hepburn in the comedy "Adam's Rib" on KPIX at 9 p.m., Rosalind Russell as "Auntie Mame" on the same channel at 11:10, and Alec Guiness and John Mills in the British picture "Tunes of Glory" on KPIX at 11:15; the San Francisco Warriors vs. Los Angeles Lakers pro basketball game on KTVU at 8:30; a variety cast on "The Hollywood Palace," KGO at 9:30, that includes Van Johnson, Betty Grable and Sergio Franchi; an Intertel documentary on poverty in the United States on KQED at 7 o'clock, and some Christmas fun on Jackie Gleason's show on KPIX at 7:30.

TOMORROW'S big special is a performance by the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies skaters with Sheila and Gordon MacRae as hosts, to be seen at 7:30 p.m. on KGO.

The Chester miracle play, "Noyes Fludde," as set to music by Benjamin Britten, will be repeated on KPIX at 3 p.m. Earlier, at 11 a.m., Channel 5 will carry the National Football League championship game between the Baltimore Colts and Cleveland Browns.

Two networks will present reviews of the news of 1964 by their correspondents with KRON carrying the National Broadcasting Co. show at 4 o'clock, and KGO airing the American Broadcasting Co. talkfest at 10:15 p.m.

Three members of the President's commission on heart disease, cancer and stroke will discuss those killers on "Issues and Answers," KGO at 1:30 p.m., and ex-British Prime Minister Anthony Eden will be the subject of "The Twentieth Century" on KPIX at 6 o'clock.

And among the movies, "All Mine to Give," a drama of the American backwoods of the 1850s with Glynis Johns, Cameron Mitchell and Patty McCormack, looks like the best bet. KTVU carries it at 7 p.m. Anthony Quinn stars in the western, "The Ride Back," on KGO at 9 p.m.
